

Ministers Agree Italians Should Pay Reparations

Investigation of Nation's Economy Will Deter- mine Amount

By JOSEPH DYNAN

PARIS, April 26 (AP)—The foreign ministers of Great Britain, France, Russia and the United States agreed today on machinery for studying the question of Italian reparations, but failed to achieve accord on the inclusion of the Ruhr and Austrian issues on the peace conference agenda.

In their second session in Luxembourg palace, the ministers took up the disputed phases of the Italian treaty and concurred in the principle that Italy should pay reparations within her ability to pay.

They also agreed on a preamble to the peace treaty holding Italy responsible for the war.

The United States, which previously had opposed any reparations from Italy, acceded to Russian demands for some payment with the proviso that a committee of experts should investigate what amount the country can pay. Russia repeated previous demands that Italy pay $300,000,000.

U. S. Insists on Proviso
The United States agreed to Italian reparations, it was reported, also with the proviso that such payment must not put Italy in the position of requiring outside economic aid.

The committee of experts must determine whether she can pay reparations without crippling herself in factory equipment, machine and armament tools and merchant ships. The Italian navy, in which the Russians were said to have shown interest, was not mentioned. It was stated that if it were found that Italy could pay without having to appeal to the United States and Great Britain for loans, then those two countries might themselves lay claims to reparations.

The ministers did not discuss the Austrian and Ruhr questions, evidently because their deputies, who prepare each day's agenda, still were at odds on both issues.

French quarters denied that V. M. Molotov, Russian foreign minister, had opposed the inclusion of the Ruhr question on the agenda, as the French wish, but implied that there was some opposition by stating that the problem was "so vast" that a great deal of study would be necessary before it could be discussed officially.

Austrian Issue Arises
France wants the Ruhr internationalized and the Rhineland detached from Germany.

Meanwhile, Russia was said to be opposing inclusion of Austria on the conference agenda on the grounds that democracy was too weak as yet in that country to permit withdrawal of occupation troops.

The second day's session ended with the debate on inclusion of the Austrian issue said still to be continuing.

The Americans were reported determined to clear foreign troops from Eastern Europe as the necessary preliminary to general reconstruction of the continent.

German pastoral letter is banned in American zone.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Official sources said today that a pastoral letter by Catholic bishops to Western Germany assailing Allied occupation policies was withdrawn in the United States zone at the request of military government officials who said it "incited resentment, unrest and possibly riot."

The letter criticized what it termed the "revolving proceedings" in Soviet-occupied Germany, compared the denazification program to a "nightmare," and said "hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of German war prisoners were being forced to do slave labor."

An official American source said the letter was to have been read by Catholic priests in the British, French and American zones, not including Bavaria, on Easter Monday.

The American learned of the letter's existence last Saturday, and discussed it with several bishops who agreed to instruct their priests not to read it from the pulpit.

"The letter was read in all Catholic churches throughout the British occupied zone, a dispatch from Hamburg said. Its reading was not discouraged there because 'it is impossible to interfere with the liberty of the church.' A British military government official said:

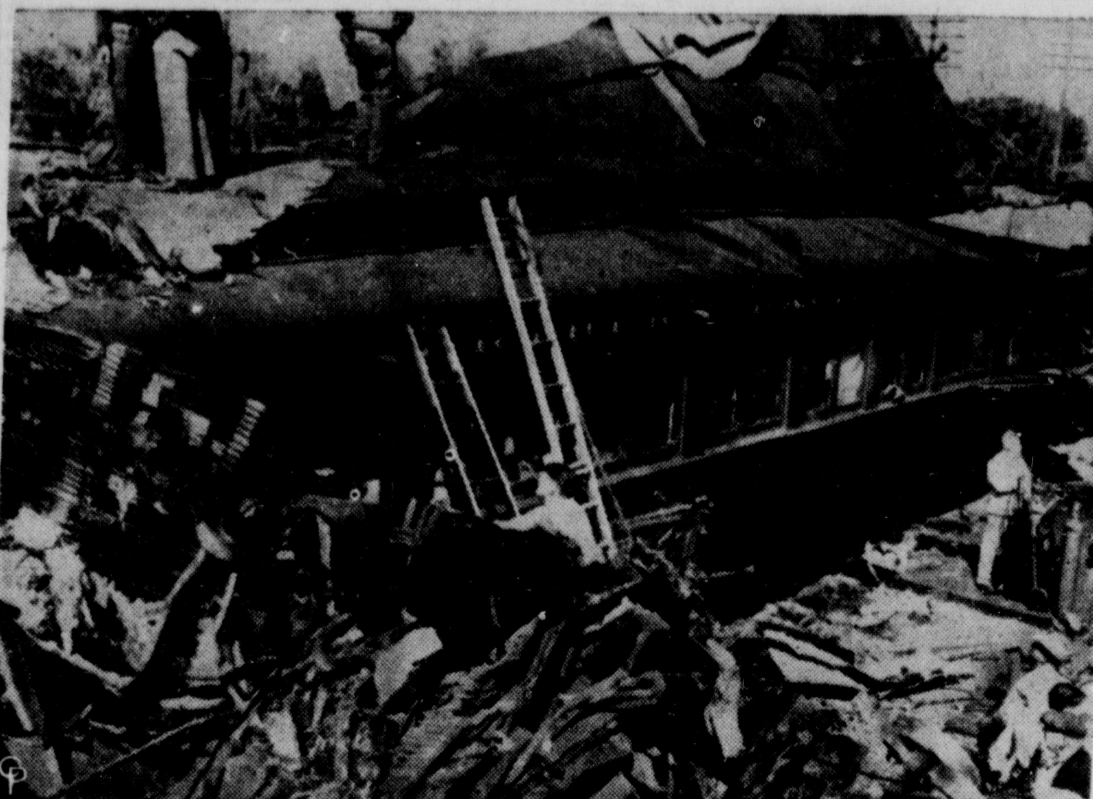

"The officer, connected with legal division, said the letter was not directed specifically against British policy, but against the four-power control council in Berlin which 'will lead Josef Cardinal Frings, archbishop of Cologne, responsible.'"

"Whether the letter was read in the French zone was not determined immediately."

JUDGE RULES VETS ARE NOT ENTITLED TO SUPER-SENIORITY

PITTSBURGH, April 26 (AP)—Federal Judge Wallace S. Gourley ruled today in an action brought by an Erie, Pa., firm that military service veterans hold no claim to "super-seniority" status with their employers and said seniority service would not in any way be impaired by military service.

A person in military service should not gain a super-seniority status which would entitle (him) to replace employees of greater seniority with their employer," Judge Gourley said in his opinion.

The judge's decision resulted from a civil action brought by the Lord Manufacturing Company, of Erie, against various employee groups to determine seniority rights and status of returning war veterans.

Shoe Production Controls May End

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Suspension of all production controls over shoes will be proposed to footwear makers and retailers on Monday, the Civilian Production Administration announced today.

If the industry consents, CPA said it would lift its "order M-217" which has regulated the country's shoe production in order to maintain quality standards in normal price ranges.

Shoe output has reached "an all-time high of 42,000,000 pairs a month," CPA said, compared to an average of 34,000,000 pairs in the period 1936 to 1940.

"Barring raw material or labor shortages this year, it is expected that shoe producers will turn out between 500,000,000 and 550,000,000 pairs of shoes in 1946—an output never before attained," the announcement said.

The production agency said OPA concurred in the proposed lifting of control, even though an OPA official recently revealed that the price agency planned shortly to increase price ceilings on low-price shoes in order to spur production.

OPA noted that its proposal is merely for suspension, not revocation, of the order.

Clue to Body Theft

ROME, April 26 (AP)—A dispatch to the Rome newspaper Giornale d'Italia today said police had found a clue to the theft of Missolini's body from a Milan potter's field, "which it is hoped may soon lead to the arrest of the guilty."

The dispatch gave no details.

Porter "Damns" Business Groups Which Would "Wreck the Economy"

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—"Damning the men who look back," Price Administrator Paul Porter declared tonight in denouncing business groups which he said would "wreck the economy" to "gamble for a short-run speculative jackpot."

Porter's address, prepared for the National Council of American Business, which favors continued price controls, asserted that the groups to which he referred but did not name would "sacrifice for quick profits the great and confident America we can become."

In "damning" men who look back, Porter said that "the limited vision of the has-beens is the only obstacle to the potential of the American industrial system."

"Once we have crossed the rough terrain ahead," he added, "the wants and needs of the American people constitute the only frontier of the postwar era."

Emergency Food Collection Will Not Be Deferred

Investigators Check En- gineer's Version of Cause of Crash

NAPERVILLE, Ill., April 26 (AP)—Several agencies investigated today a Burlington railroad crash which killed forty-four persons here yesterday in the nation's worst postwar rail disaster, and these questions were at the top of their list:

What were the condition of the brakes on the Exposition Flyer? When were the brakes applied? And did the comparative light weight of the train reduce its braking power?

Among the dead were two children and fourteen women. More than 100 others were injured, at least four critically.

The last of the wreck victims was identified tonight as Mrs. Dorothy Lee Aman, 22, Omaha, Neb.

Fireman Jumped, Was Killed
State's Attorney Lee Daniels said the 68-year-old engineer of the Exposition Flyer, W. W. Blaine, Galesburg, Ill., told him that the high speed and light weight of his train were responsible for the collision.

Blaine, who suffered a skull fracture and cuts, has been charged with manslaughter. He remained at the controls when his Exposition Flyer crashed through the rear coach of the Advance Flyer, which had made an unscheduled stop. Later he climbed down unassisted and was taken to a hospital at nearby Aurora.

His fireman, E. H. Crayton, Galesburg, jumped and was killed seconds before the crash.

Warren Henry, chief investigator for the Illinois Commerce Commission, contended that an engineer would have nearly 11,000 feet in which to stop his train at the scene of the collision if he had applied his brakes when the yellow automatic signal was visible and if the brakes were in normal condition.

No Defect in Signal System
Henry said a red signal, calling for an immediate stop, was flashing some 1,100 feet before the point of collision; that a yellow signal was operating another 5,475 feet before the red light and that the yellow signal was visible at a distance of 3,900 feet, or nearly 11,000 feet from the crash site.

A train traveling eighty-five miles an hour, Henry said, "could be brought to a halt with normal braking within 11,000 feet without application of emergency brakes. He said no defect in the signal system was found."

State's Attorney Lee Daniels, of Du Page county, who headed one of three investigating bodies, obtained a manslaughter warrant against the engineer, after interviewing him in the hospital, but described the move as a technicality.

Meanwhile, the state's attorney interviewed crew members and eyewitnesses, and arranged a conference with railroad representatives tomorrow in an effort to fix responsibility for the crash.

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
QUANTICO, Va., April 26 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower conferred today with President Truman at home and abroad, including opposition in Congress to extension of the draft.

The genial chief of staff wore a worried look as he stepped onto the wharf at this marine base from the escort vessel, which brought him back from the presidential yacht Williamsburg.

Eisenhower declined to discuss his talk with the president—his last before leaving Sunday on a month's inspection of army installations in the Pacific and conferences with Gen. Douglas MacArthur at Tokyo. But he is known to be concerned over House action designed to ban inductions from May 15 to October 15. The president voiced his own concern in the light of United Nations commitments.

Meanwhile, Mr. Truman turned his attention to pressing domestic problems, including the coal strike. Reconversion Director John W. Snyder, who sat in last Saturday with Labor Secretary Schweikert and United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis, joins a. m. executive here at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

The Williamsburg will return to Washington Sunday afternoon.

Wallace Says Foreign Re- lief Program Will Pro- ceed as Planned

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Wallace, as chairman of the "Emergency Food Collection," announced tonight that its foreign relief program would proceed as planned, including food collections starting May 12.

F. H. LaGuardia, director-general of UNRRA, had told reporters in Fargo, N. D., last night that the campaign was being "deferred pending further study" because the proposed collection of food bought at retail was "an uneconomic method" of attacking the hunger problem.

Wallace issued a statement announcing he had asked the voluntary agencies for foreign relief which were accredited by the president's war relief control board to "co-operate in carrying out the previously announced emergency relief collection program."

The purpose of the program, he said, was to "permit the American people to express their generosity through personal gifts as well as through food conservation efforts."

"Contributions may be made either in cash or in food canned in tin," Wallace reiterated. "Contributions in canned foods are welcome, particularly when consumers already have such food available in their homes."

Wallace added, however, "for the benefit of those who would have to buy food to contribute," that "much more food can be obtained if cash is contributed, because the food can then be procured wholesale and without additional expenses for collecting, packaging and transporting individual cans."

Cash contributions, he said, may be sent to "The Foreign Relief Collections Committee, 100 Maiden Lane, New York City."

Wallace said that LaGuardia had "agreed" that UNRRA would "make available for the co-ordination of this joint undertaking" its staff which had "co-operated in previous voluntary collections" and had helped plan this drive.

"In addition," he said, "UNRRA will, where necessary, provide ocean transportation and deliver the supplies to the designated approved agencies abroad, so as to facilitate distributions in the countries concerned. The program has the full and wholehearted support of UNRRA."

NUERNBERG, April 26 (AP)—Jew-baiter Julius Streicher told the international military tribunal today that he had been maltreated by American troops in "gestapo" fashion, but afterward was treated humanely and correctly by Jewish officers and doctors.

The squat, bald defendant declared that before he was brought to Nuernberg for trial he was beaten and chained, forced to kiss the feet of negro troops, spat upon, and ordered to drink from latrines.

He made no comment on the testimony of the defendant, given in the same loud rapid-fire speech with which he had once roused the Nazi rabble against the Jews.

Earlier Hans Bernd Gisevius, a mystery defense witness whose testimony has backfired against the top Nazis on trial, disclosed that he had been in contact with the American intelligence services during the war.

A qualified American informant said that Gisevius had been in the service of the United States Office of Strategic Services in Switzerland and Germany since 1943.

Acheson Urges Drastic Action In Food Crisis

Acting Secretary of State Raises Possibility of Rationing

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Acting Secretary of State Acheson stepped into the food picture today with a call for much more drastic action to fulfill America's promises of help to the starving abroad.

Asked at a news conference what sort of drastic action might be taken, he said that there was no great mystery about it, that if you wanted to get wheat or flour, what you had to do was to go and take wheat or flour.

His remarks were made after discussion had started in other government food quarters as to whether further formal action should be taken to cut home use of bread.

At the Agriculture department, officials discounted any possibility of government action to seize grain from farms. They did not rule out entirely, however, the possibility of requisitioning supplies from other channels if other measures should prove inadequate.

Rationing Is Mentioned
Following up an earlier statement by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said that Americans simply must eat less bread because of the "very serious" wheat shortage. Acheson took a news conference that much more drastic action is needed to get food to the hunger areas overseas.

Asked what might be done, Acheson replied there was no great mystery about it, that if you wanted to get wheat or flour what you had to do was to go and take wheat or flour. There are various ways to do that, he said, including the possibility of rationing.

Acheson's observations were made after he was asked for an explanation of the government's policy of sending wheat to Japan, which has been called into question by the Far Eastern Commission. The acting secretary said Germany and Japan will receive only one-third of the amounts allocated to them, while other famine-threatened countries will get two-thirds in the redistribution necessitated by the wheat shortage.

Bakers Can Draw on Reserves
Possibility of further government action to cut home use of bread grew from the realization that steps taken thus far probably will not whittle down greatly the output of bakery products.

This probability raised the question in government food quarters as to whether action should be taken to limit the amount of flour bakers may use during the pre-harvest emergency.

Under present government regulations, bakers can keep up their output at near normal levels by drawing on their flour reserves until after the wheat harvest.

BALTIMORE, April 26 (AP)—Dorothy Lamour's visit to her husband's Maryland home to get a "well-earned rest" turned out today to be an expensive trip—a fact having cost a suitcase containing $27,803.56 worth of her valuables.

The items, which ranged from a diamond and ruby brooch worth $4,500 to William Ross Howard's army dog tags and included all the actress's jewelry except what she was wearing—were stolen from the Howards' parked car while the couple was attending a family reunion dinner at a downtown hotel last night.

The thief smashed the car's vent window, unlocked the door, took one of sixteen pieces of luggage, relocked the door, closed the window, and fled.

Sen. McKellar Backs Proposed Loan to Britain

Bilbo Yields Floor Tem- porarily; Farm Groups Urge Price Controls

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Sen. McKellar (D-Tenn.) presiding officer of the Senate, today got behind the administration's proposal to lend Britain $3,750,000,000.

The veteran Tennessee said he had changed his mind several times before coming to the conclusion that the United States ought to "take the chance" of extending the huge credit to Britain.

Sen. Bilbo (D-Miss.), who has held the floor for three days in filibustering tactics against the loan, yielded temporarily to permit McKellar to come down from the presiding officer's chair and get into the debate.

McKellar said he was swayed by his final decision by the fact that the loan is supported by President Truman, Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of the Treasury Vinson.

"If Great Britain flounders, all the world suffers," McKellar said. Before the Senate Banking committee, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the National Farmers' Union urged the continuation of stronger price controls than the House has voted.

Both President Ed O'Neal of the farm bureau, and Albert Goss, master of the grange, also called for stiffer control of wages and an end to the subsidies now paid by the government to hold down food prices. The committee is considering legislation to extend price controls to another year after June 30.

Sen. Bilbo branched off from discussion of the British loan to attack Life magazine and criticize its publisher, Henry R. Luce, and his wife, Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.). The magazine published an article last month critical of Bilbo and some other senators who are running for re-election.

The House is in adjournment until April 30.

Security Council Delays Showdown On Spain Inquiry

Delegates Hope Russia Might Reverse Stand against Probe

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council again stood off a showdown on the Spanish question today in the hope that Russia—alone in opposition—might reverse her position and make possible a unanimous vote for Australia's latest proposal to investigate the Franco regime.

With all the delegates except the Russian apparently in agreement on a twice-revised Australian resolution, the council adjourned after a fifteen-minute session Monday at 3 p. m. EDT.

Although there were no indications that Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko was wavering in his opposition to an investigation, the delegates conceded that the only reason a vote was not taken today was the hope of some that Russia might eventually change her stand.

The Soviet delegate indicated that he still stood by his views that the council already had sufficient evidence to show that the Franco regime is a menace to world peace and that no inquiry is necessary.

Outside the council chamber Gromyko said:

"I think I made myself clear yesterday."

Yesterday he declared he would vote for no investigation in any form, but would support a proposal for a subcommittee to recommend action against Franco Spain.

The postponement move came immediately after Lt. Col. W. R. Hodson, Australian delegate, announced that he had conferred with French Delegate Henri Bonnet and Polish Delegate Oscar Lange during the night in an effort to seek a compromise and added:

"I am pleased to say that we were successful."

The French and Polish delegates were the only ones besides Gromyko who expressed opposition to Hodson's proposal at yesterday's three-and-a-half-hour session.

State Delegation to Next Congress To Include at Least One New Face

By JAMES E. HAGUE
BALTIMORE, April 26 (AP)—There is bound to be one new face in Maryland's delegation to the next Congress and the Republicans are hoping there will be more.

H. Street Baldwin, incumbent in the Second of the state's six congressional districts, threw his political hopes into the Democratic gubernatorial primary. It is now too late for him to change his mind, and run for re-nomination, even if he wanted to.

At least nominal contests at the June 24 primaries are assured for the Democratic nominations in all districts with the fight in the Second expected to be anything but nominal.

Excepting Baldwin, all incumbents, including the single Republican, are seeking return to the House of Representatives.

This is the congressional picture by districts:

First—Dudley G. Roe, Sudlersville, Democratic incumbent, faces a primary fight against Emerson C. Harrington, Cambridge. The Republican place on the ticket is sought by William H. Lloyd, Lloyds, and Edward T. Miller, Easton.

MISS EILEEN CAREY, of Mary Immaculate Unit, St. Mary's high school here, won the fourteenth annual oratorical contest of the Western Maryland Catholic Students Mission Crusade, held last night in Carroll hall. (See page 16)

Talks Probably Will Be Resumed Early Next Week

Labor Secretary Invites Operators To Meet with Him Tomorrow

ANTHRACITE STRIKE
NOTICE IS APPROVED

Pennsylvania Hard Coal Miners Ask More Pay, Shorter Hours

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Mounting pressures for a settlement of the critical soft coal strike prompted Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach today to request John L. Lewis and the operators to resume negotiations next week.

Schwellenbach also invited the bituminous operators, who scattered to their homes before Easter, to return to a meeting with him Sunday afternoon, it was learned from the field.

Presumably the secretary was seeking a basis for picking up negotiations which could end the twenty-six-day old strike of 400,000 soft coal miners.

Schwellenbach told reporters he was asking the operators to return early next week and would propose resumption of negotiations probably Monday or Tuesday.

Lewis at Hazleton, Pa., where anthracite miners came up with usually the same contract demands to be presented to the hard coal operators as were handed to the bituminous producers March 12.

The United Mine Workers president was expected to return to Washington tomorrow afternoon and also meet Schwellenbach before the negotiations resumed.

The secretary said that although little had happened to indicate much progress since the bituminous negotiations were broken off by Lewis April 10, still the dwindling supply of coal made resumption of the talks next week "worthwhile."

Up to now he and his advisors have said that resumption of negotiations would be fruitless so long as both sides maintained their position on the crucial demand for a union-administered health and welfare fund raised by a tonnage royalty on coal.

Lewis walked out April 10, 10 meeting saying further conversation was "futile" while the operators refused to commit themselves to the principle of the health and welfare fund and improved mine safety and persisted in wanting to talk wages and hours.

At Hazleton, the anthracite miners' convention decided upon seven demands which closely paralleled the nine bituminous demands.

The hard coal miners did not ask for unionization of supervisory workers, which is one of the toughest controversies in the bituminous negotiations.

Anthracite Miners Authorize Strike Notice

HAZLETON, Pa., April 26 (AP)—Demanding higher pay and lower working hours, Pennsylvania's 75,000 anthracite miners authorized a thirty-day strike notice today with John L. Lewis shouting "We highly resolve to secure health and welfare through our own strength."

A scale convention adopted general contract demands without specifying exact terms, bowing to Lewis's suggestion not to tip off operators in advance and "allow them to prepare a defense to our request."

The AFL-United Mine Workers' hard coal agreement expires May 31, the strike notice to be filed before that date. Negotiations with operators are scheduled to start in New York May 10.

"Modernized" Approach
Declaring his UMW has modernized its negotiating approach "to meet the competition of our adversaries," Lewis told the cheering convention.

"I have no expectation of fixing my name to any contract, either for anthracite or bituminous coal miners, that does not provide for the health, welfare and safety of each of the men."

Anthracite demands, opposed by only six of 440 convention delegates on a "standing vote," were patterned after those of 400,000 soft coal miners. UMW parleys with bituminous industry were stymied two weeks ago in badly-disputed health and welfare fund issues.

"Hard coal miners now draw $8.39 daily for a seven-hour, five day work week. Time and a half is provided

Ministers Agree Italians Should Pay Reparations

Investigation of Nation's Economy Will Determine Amount

By JOSEPH DYNAN

PARIS, April 26 (AP)—The foreign ministers of Great Britain, France, Russia and the United States agreed today on machinery for studying the question of Italian reparations, but failed to achieve accord on the inclusion of the Ruhr and Austrian issues on the peace conference agenda.

In their second session in Luxembourg palace, the ministers took up the disputed phases of the Italian treaty and concurred in the principle that Italy should pay reparations within her ability to pay.

They also agreed on a preamble to the peace treaty holding Italy responsible for the war.

The United States, which previously had opposed any reparations from Italy, acceded to Russian demands for some payment with the proviso that a committee of experts should investigate the Italian economy to determine what amount the country can pay. Russia repeated previous demands that Italy pay $300,000,000.

U. S. Insists on Proviso
The United States agreed to Italian reparations, it was reported, also with the proviso that such payment must not put Italy in the position of requiring outside economic aid.

The committee of experts must determine whether she can pay reparations without crippling herself in factory equipment, machine and armament tools and merchant ships. The Italian navy, in which the Russians were said to have shown interest, was not mentioned.

It was indicated that if it were found that Italy could pay without having to appeal to the United States and Great Britain for loans, then those two countries might themselves lay claims to reparations.

The ministers did not discuss the Austrian and Ruhr questions, evidently because their deputies, who prepare each day's agenda, still were at odds on both issues.

French quarters denied that V.
M. Molotov, Russian foreign minister, had opposed the inclusion of the Ruhr question on the agenda, as the French wish to "imply" as stating that the problem was "so vast" that a great deal of study would be necessary before it could be discussed officially.

Austrian Issue Arises
France wants the Ruhr internationalized and the Rhineland detached from Germany.

Meanwhile, Russia was said to be opposing inclusion of Austria on the conference agenda on the grounds that democracy was too weak as yet in that country to permit withdrawal of occupation troops.

The second day's session ended with the debate on inclusion of the Austrian issue said still to be continuing.

The Americans were reported determined to clear foreign troops from Eastern Europe as the necessary preliminary to general reconstruction of the continent on normal, peaceful lines. Such measures, it was argued, should include Austria where Russia maintains a garrison of about 200,000 troops.

German Pastoral Letter Is Banned In American Zone

By DON DOANE

WIESBADEN, Germany, April 26.
(AP)—Official sources said today that a pastoral letter by Catholic bishops in Western Germany assailing Allied occupation policies was withdrawn in the United States zone at the request of military government officials who said it "incited resentment, unrest and possibly riot."

The letter criticized what it termed the "revolving proceedings" in Soviet-occupied Germany, compared the denazification program to a "nightmare," and said "hundreds of thousands, if not millions," of German war prisoners were being forced to do slave labor.

An official American source said the letter was to have been read by Catholic priests in the British, French and American zones, not including Bavaria, on Easter Monday.

The American learned of the letter's existence last Saturday, and discussed it with several bishops who agreed to instruct their priests not to read it from the pulpit.

(The letter was read in all Catholic churches throughout the British occupied zone, a dispatch from Hamburg said. Its reading was not discouraged there because "it is impossible to interfere with the liberty of the church," a British military government officer said.)

(Whether the letter was read in the French zone was not determined immediately.)

Monday, the Civilian Production Administration announced today.

If the industry concurs, CPA said it would lift its "order M-21" which for nearly four years has regulated the country's shoe production in order to maintain quality standards in normal price ranges.

Shoe output has reached "an all-time high of 42,000,000 pairs a month," CPA said, compared to an average of 34,100,000 pairs in the period 1936 to 1940.

"Barring raw material or labor shortages this year, it is expected that shoe producers will turn out from 500,000,000 and 550,000,000 pairs of shoes in 1946—an output never before attained," the announcement said.

The production agency said OPA concurred in the proposed lifting of control, even though an OPA official recently revealed that the price agency planned shortly to increase price ceilings on low-priced shoes in order to spur production.

CPA noted that its proposal is merely for suspension, not revocation, of the order.

ROME, April 26 (AP)—A dispatch to the Rome newspaper Giornale d'Italia today said police had found a clue to the theft of Mussolini's body from a Milan potter's field

"which it is hoped may soon lead to the arrest of the guilty." The dispatch gave no details.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—

"Damn the men who look back," Price Administrator Paul Porter declared today in denouncing business groups which, he said, would "wreck the economy" to "gamble for a short-run speculative jackpot."

Porter's address, prepared for the New Council of American Business, which favors continued price controls, asserted that the groups to which he referred but did not name would "sacrifice for quick profits the great and confident America we can become."

In "damning" men who look back, Porter said that "the limited vision of the has-beens is the only boundary to the potential of the American industrial system."

"Once we have crossed the rough terrain ahead," he added, "the wants and needs of the American people constitute the only frontier of the postwar era."

Emergency Food Collection Will Not Be Deferred

Investigators Check Engineer's Version of Cause of Crash

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—

Several agencies investigated today a Burlington railroad crash which killed forty-four persons here yesterday in the nation's worst postwar rail disaster, and these questions were at the top of their list:

What were the condition of the brakes on the Exposition Flyer?
When were the brakes applied? And did the comparative light weight of the train reduce its braking power?

Among the dead were two children and fourteen women. More than 100 others were injured, at least four critically.

The last of the wreck victims was identified tonight as Mrs. Dorothy Lee Aman, 22, Omaha, Neb.

Fireman Jumped, Was Killed

State's Attorney Lee Daniels said the 68-year-old engineer of the Exposition Flyer, W. W. Blaine, Galesburg, Ill., told him that the high speed and light weight of his train were responsible for the collision.

Blaine, who suffered a skull fracture and cuts, has been charged with manslaughter. He remained at the controls when his Exposition Flyer knifed through the rear coach of the Advance Flyer, which had made an unscheduled stop. Later he climbed down unassisted and was taken to a hospital at nearby Aurora.

His fireman, E. H. Crayton, Galesburg, jumped and was killed seconds before the crash.

Warren Henry, chief investigator for the Illinois Commerce Commission, contended that an engineer would have nearly 11,000 feet in which to stop his train at the scene of the collision if he had applied his brakes when the yellow automatic signal was visible and if the brakes were in normal condition.

No Defect in Signal System
Henry said a red signal, calling for an immediate stop, was flashing some 1,100 feet before the point of collision; that a yellow signal was operating another 5,475 feet before the red light and that the yellow signal was visible at a distance of 3,900 feet or nearly 11,000 feet from the crash site.

A train traveling eighty-five miles an hour, Henry said, could be brought to a halt with normal braking within 11,000 feet without application of emergency brakes. He said no defect in the signal system was found.

State's Attorney Lee Daniels, of Du Page county, who headed one of three investigating bodies, obtained a manslaughter warrant against the engineer, after interviewing him in the hospital, but described the move as a technicality.

Meanwhile, the state's attorney interviewed crew members and eyewitnesses and arranged a conference with railroad representatives tomorrow in an effort to fix responsibility for the crash.

Spokesmen of all three farm organizations supported price controls stronger than those provided by the House bill continuing the OPA for nine months beyond June 30.

Wallace issued a statement announcing he had asked the voluntary agencies for foreign relief
which were accredited by the president's war relief control board to
"co-operate in carrying out the previously announced emergency relief collection program."

The purpose of the program, he said, was to "permit the American people to express their generosity through personal gifts as well as through food conservation efforts."

"Contributions may be made either in cash or in food canned in tin," Wallace reiterated. "Contributions in canned foods are welcome, particularly when consumers already have such food available in their homes."

Wallace added, however, "for the benefit of those who would have to buy food to contribute," that
"much more food can be obtained
if cash is contributed, because the food can then be procured wholesale and without additional expenditures for collecting, packaging
and transporting individual cans."

Cash contributions, he said, may be sent to "The Foreign Relief Collections Committee, 100 Maiden
Lane, New York City."

Emergency Food Collection Will Not Be Deferred

Wallace Says Foreign Relief Program Will Proceed as Planned

Secretary of Commerce Wallace, as chairman of the "Emergency Food Collection," announced tonight that its foreign relief program would proceed as planned, including food collections starting May 12.

F. H. LaGuardia, director-general of UNRRA, had told reporters in Paris, N. D., last night that the campaign was being "deferred pending further study" because the proposed collection of food bought at retail was "an uneconomic method" of attacking the hunger problem.

Wallace issued a statement announcing he had asked the voluntary agencies for foreign relief
which were accredited by the president's war relief control board to
"co-operate in carrying out the previously announced emergency relief
collection program."

The purpose of the program, he said, was to "permit the American people to express their generosity
through personal gifts as well as through food conservation efforts."

"Contributions may be made
either in cash or in food canned in tin," Wallace reiterated. "Contributions in canned foods are welcome,
particularly when consumers already have such food available in their homes."

Wallace added, however, "for the benefit of those who would have
to buy food to contribute," that
"much more food can be obtained
if cash is contributed, because the food can then be procured wholesale and without additional expenditures for collecting, packaging
and transporting individual cans."

Cash contributions, he said, may be sent to "The Foreign Relief Collections Committee, 100 Maiden
Lane, New York City."

Wallace said that LaGuardia had "agreed" that UNRRA would "make available for the co-ordination of this joint undertaking" its staff which had "co-operated in previous voluntary collections" and had helped plan this drive.

In addition, he said, "UNRRA will, where necessary, provide ocean transportation and deliver the supplies to the designated approved agencies abroad, so as to facilitate distributions in the countries concerned. The program has the full and wholehearted support of UNRRA."

Truman Confers With Eisenhower

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

QUANTICO, Va., April 26 (AP)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower conferred for four hours with President Truman today on army problems at home and abroad, including opposition in Congress to extension of the draft.

The genial chief of staff wore a worried look as he stepped onto the wharf at this marine base from the escort vessel which brought him back from the presidential yacht Williamsburg.

Eisenhower declined to discuss his talk with the president—his last before leaving Sunday on a month's inspection of army installations in the Pacific and conferences with Gen. Douglas MacArthur at Tokyo.

But he is known to be concerned over House action designed to ban inductions from May 15 to October 15. The president voiced his own concern in the light of United Nations commitments.

Meanwhile, Mr. Truman turned his attention to pressing domestic problems, including the coal strike.
Reconversion Director John W.
Snyder, who sat in last Saturday with Labor Secretary Schwellenbach and United Mine Workers chief John L. Lewis, joins the chief executive here at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

The Williamsburg will return to Washington Sunday afternoon.

Acheson Urges Drastic Action In Food Crisis

Acting Secretary of State Raises Possibility of Rationing

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—

Acting Secretary of State Acheson stepped into the food picture today with a call for much more drastic action to fulfill America's promises of help to the starving abroad.

Asked at a news conference what sort of drastic action might be taken, he said that there was no great mystery about it, that if you wanted to get wheat or flour, what you had to do was to go and take wheat or flour.

His remarks were made after discussion had started in other government food quarters as to whether further formal action should be taken to cut home use of bread.

At the Agriculture department, officials discounted any possibility of government action to seize grain from farms. They did not rule out entirely, however, the possibility of requisitioning supplies from other channels if other measures should prove inadequate.

Rationing Is Mentioned

Following up an earlier statement by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said that Americans simply must eat less bread because of the "very serious" wheat shortage. Acheson told a news conference that much more drastic action is needed to get food to the hunger areas overseas.

Asked what might be done,
Acheson replied there was no great mystery about it, that if you want to get wheat or flour what you have to do is go and take wheat or flour. There are various ways to do that, including the possibility of rationing.

Acheson's observations were made after he was asked for an explanation of the government's policy of sending wheat to Japan, which has been called into question by the Far Eastern Commission. The acting secretary said Germany and Japan will receive only one-third of the amounts allocated to them, while other famine-threatened countries will get two-thirds in the redistribution necessitated by the wheat shortage.

Bakers Can Draw on Reserves

Possibility of further government action to cut home use of bread grew from the realization that steps taken thus far probably will not whittle down greatly the output of bakery products.

This probability raised the question in government food quarters as to whether action should be taken to limit the amount of flour which bakers may use during the pre-harvest emergency.

Under present government regulations, bakers can keep up their output at near normal levels by drawing on their flour reserves until after the wheat harvest.

Dorothy Lamour's Trip to Maryland Is Expensive One

BALTIMORE, April 26 (AP)—Dorothy

Lamour's visit to her husband's Maryland home to see the steeplecaser and get a "well-earned rest" turned today to be an expensive trip — a thief having stolen a suitcase containing $27,803.56 worth of valuables.

The items — which ranged from a diamond and ruby brooch worth $4,500 to William Ross Howard's army dog tags and included all the jewelry except what she was wearing — were stolen from the Howards' parked car while the couple was attending a family reunion dinner at a downtown hotel last night.

The thief smashed the car's ventilator window, unlocked the door, took out six pieces of luggage, relocked the door, closed the window and fled.

Howard's brother, Col. C. Ridgely Howard, was driving the car—one of two which met the screen star and her husband when they arrived by train from New York. He discovered the broken window when he left the hotel, but didn't know at first whether anything had been stolen.

STREICHER DECLARES HE WAS MALTREATED BY AMERICAN TROOPS

NUERNBERG, April 26 (AP)—

Jew-baiter Julius Streicher told the international military tribunal today that he had been maltreated by American troops in "gestapo" fashion, but afterward was treated humanely and correctly by Jewish officers and doctors.

The squat, bald defendant declared that before he was brought to Nuernberg for trial he was beaten and chained, forced to kiss the feet of negro troops, spat upon, and ordered to drink from latrines.

Army security guard officials had no comment on the testimony of the defendant, given in the same loud rapid-fire speech with which he had once roared the Nazi rabble against the Jews.

Earlier Hans Bernd Gisevius, a mystery defense witness whose testimony has backfired against the top Nazis on trial, disclosed that he had been in contact with the American intelligence services during the war.

A qualified American informant said that Gisevius had been in the service of the United States Office of Strategic Services in Switzerland and Germany since 1943.

Sen. McKellar Backs Proposed Loan to Britain

Bilbo Yields Floor Temporarily; Farm Groups Urge Price Controls

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Sen.

McKellar (D-Tenn.) presiding officer of the Senate, today got behind the administration's proposal to lend Britain $3,750,000,000.

The veteran Tennessee said he had changed his mind several times before coming to the conclusion that the United States ought to make the "loan" of extending the huge credit to Britain.

Sen. Bilbo (D-Miss.), who has held the floor for three days in filibustering tactics against the loan, yielded temporarily to permit Mc-Kellar to come down from the presiding officer's chair and get into the debate.

McKellar said he was swayed by his final decision by the fact that the loan is supported by President Truman, Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of the Treasury Vinson.

"If Great Britain founders, all the world suffers," McKellar said.

Before the Senate Banking committee, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the National Farmers' Union urged the continuation of stringent price controls.

The Soviet delegate indicated that he still stood by his views that the council already had sufficient evidence to show that the Franco regime is a menace to world peace and that no inquiry is necessary.

Outside the council chamber Gromyko said:

"I think I made myself clear yesterday."

Yesterday he declared he would vote for no investigation in any form, but would support a proposal for a subcommittee to recommend action against Franco Spain.

The postponement move came immediately after Lt.-Col. W. R.
Hodgson, Australian delegate, announced that he had conferred with French Delegate Henri Bonnet and Polish Delegate Oscar Lange during the night in an effort to seek a compromise and added:

"I am pleased to say that we were successful."

The French and Polish delegates were the only ones besides Gromyko who expressed opposition to Rod-gson's proposal at yesterday's three-and-a-half-hour session.

The House is in adjournment until April 30.

First—Dudley G. Roe, Sudlersville, Democratic incumbent, faces a primary fight against Emerson
C. Harrington, Cambridge. The Republican place on the ticket is sought by William H. Lloyd, Loyds, and Edward T. Miller, Easton.

Second—Seven Democrats are seeking the place Baldwin will vacate. Hugh A. Meade, Baltimore, has Baldwin's backing in the primary. Claude A. Hanley, Towson, and Herbert L. Grymes, Baltimore, are the congressional aspirants on two of the anti-Baldwin tickets.

The other Democratic candidates in this usually-Democratic district are Robert S. Di Paula, Baltimore; George M. Berry, Lutherville; William B. Collins, Baltimore, and Curtis O. Tyson, Baltimore.

David G. Harry, Pylesville, is the only Republican contender for the nomination in the Second.

Third—Thomas D'Alessandro, Jr., will seek his fifth term as Democratic congressman from this district with James W. Miller and Bernard F. Owens, both of Baltimore, providing the opposition at the primaries. Edward N. Kowan, Baltimore, is the only GOP entrant in the field.

Fourth—George H. Fallon, Balti-opponent in the Democratic primary, John A. Meyer, Baltimore.

son, both of Baltimore, are com-

Delegates Hope Russia Might Reverse Stand against Probe

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council again stood off a showdown on the Spanish question today in the hope that Russia—alone in opposition—might reverse her position and make possible a unanimous vote for Australia's latest proposal to investigate the Franco regime.

With all the delegates except the Russian apparently in agreement on a twice-revised Australian resolution, the council adjourned after a fifteen-minute session on Monday at 3 p. m. EDT.

Although there were no indications that Soviet Delegate Andrei
A. Gromyko was wavering in his opposition to an investigation, the delegates conceded that the only reason a vote was not taken today

Miss McNamee Dies Suddenly In Mt. Savage

By CATHERINE O'ROURKE

MT. SAVAGE, April 26—Miss Catherine McNamee, 64, died suddenly yesterday morning at 10:40 o'clock following a heart attack at her home, Main street. She was a native and life long resident of Mt. Savage and was the daughter of the late Francis and Mary McNamee.

She was an active member of the local Red Cross chapter for over twenty-five years. Miss McNamee was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church and belonged to the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary. From the time she was fifteen years of age she served as a sanctuary of the church, cleaning and decorating the altars for special church occasions.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Noonan, with whom she resided in the McNamee family home, and Mrs. Rose McMullen, Cumberland, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Miss Lamour and her husband meanwhile had left for home in the other car.

When the entire family had arrived at the Howard home outside Baltimore, a quick check was made of the baggage, and the loss was discovered.

The stolen suitcase contained a jewel case which the actress said had been on her lap on the trip to Baltimore. At the last moment she decided to lock it in the bag rather than take it with her into the hotel.

Miss Lamour said it was the first time since she left the West coast that the case had been out of her possession.

Howard's first reaction to the theft was: "What about my dog tags? I'm more interested in them. I carried them all the while I was in the army."

and causing other damage. The building was formerly the West Side school and youths enter the lot in the afternoon and evenings, he said. One boy threw a rock and broke a window in the Pirie home, he said, and the boy's mother was quoted as saying, "He can play there all he wants to, as long as I pay for the windows he breaks."

Narrowly Averted Accident
Pirie also reported that a fence post was placed in the driveway and his sister narrowly averted an accident when putting the car in the garage.

The name of Mrs. Lloyd B. Shaw, Barton, was presented to the board for possible appointment next month to fill a vacancy on the welfare board.

called police, and returned to assist the girl. Several other persons assembled and the police cruiser which was on upper Virginia avenue arrived in a very few minutes, he said.

Leasure accompanied the police in search of the auto, and they found a brown sedan parked almost side ways along River avenue, near the Wiley Ford, W. Va., bridge. Holt was seated in the car, on the right side, Leasure said, and was either drunk or asleep. The left front head lamp of the machine was missing, he declared.

Police officers who investigated the case testified that Holt was extremely drunk and that a pint bottle of liquor, "almost empty," was in the car. They told the court the head lamp picked up at the scene of the accident fitted the car Holt was in.

Ryan, assisted by William L. Wilson, Jr., followed a line of questioning in an effort to show that some person other than Holt was driving the car at the time. Leasure and police said they saw no tracks in the snow which would indicate that some person had stopped the car and run away.

Holt told the court he had been drinking, but that he did not remember hitting any one or driving down Virginia avenue.

Agrees To Pay $2,000
The court was told by Ryan that an agreement had been made between Holt and Miss Bennett for Holt to pay her $2,000 over a period of time to compensate her for her injuries and expenses which resulted.

Ryan asked the court to be lenient and if possible merge some of the charges or suspend the fines. He said Holt has eight children and many more difficult for Holt to pay Miss Bennett anything. Fletcher told the court "it is my opinion Miss Bennett won't get much out of him anyway."

Magistrate Perdue said he was not inclined to put any weight on the theory that someone else was driving the car, and that this appeared to be a case of negligence and drunkenness. He reminded those present that he could fix a fine of $1,000 in this case. He then imposed fines of $200 for leaving the scene of an accident, $100 for drunk driving and $50 for reckless driving.

Ryan indicated an appeal will be filed.

Bowman's Addition answered a call about 8 a. m.

Limited Water Supply
Firemen said they were hampered by a limited water supply and that the LaVale and Corrigantville departments used small pumps to draw water from a stream running through the property. Cresaptown used water from its booster tank and so did other companies.

LaVale and Cresaptown firemen remained on the scene until 5 p. m., yesterday, wetting down the smoldering hay and Elmer T. Beachley, LaVale, reported the fire "completely out" after members of his company returned to their station. Corrigantville and Bowman's Addition companies left the scene about noon, Beachley said.

B. A. Mason, Jr., and his brother, John T. Mason, have operated the dairy since their father died about a year ago with no interruption to service.

The barn was built in 1929 to replace one destroyed by fire.

Boy Scout Council Secures 50 Army Mountaineer Tents

There is no reason at all now why Potomac council boy scouts need hesitate about scheduling overnight hikes next winter, for they will be equipped with fifty of the finest mountaineer tents that were manufactured for the United States Army.

The tents, constructed of water-proofed balloon silk and nylon, were received yesterday by Kenneth E. Jackson, scout executive of Potomac council. All of the equipment was declared surplus by the army and sold through the War Assets Administration.

Jackson said the tents will replace the regular scout shelter tent and added that the tents were obtained for $4.70 delivered. A regular scout pup tent with closed front costs $7.50. Each tent cost the army $27.50.

The two-man tents, about forty-three inches wide and about the same height, are equipped with collapsible poles and weigh five and one-quarter pounds without the poles. Since the tent is equipped with a floor, it will be especially useful in inclement weather.

The mountaineer tent is ventilated fore and aft, Jackson said, and has a round igloo entrance in front. Mosquito netting is sewn into all openings of the tent.

The tents were designed by the quartermaster corps for use by mountain troops and soldiers who were required to fight under Arctic conditions.

The scout executive added that the council has ordered surplus sleeping bags and screen wire that can be used to advantage here.

—School savings in Britain since the war have reached $400,000,000, equal to $168 for each saver.

Will Be Permanent Record
The new form, a streamlined model, is less than half the size of the former chart, and has eliminated considerable duplication. While the old form could be used only three years, the new form will be a permanent record.

The group went to Allegany high school for luncheon yesterday noon and later a tour of the Celanese plant conducted the visit of the school officials to Allegany county. The host-officials were glad to report yesterday that Willard Davis, Talbot county superintendent, who was ill Thursday, was able to participate in yesterday's program.

Other guests who were not present the first day were Philip A. Rauth, president of the Washington county board of education, and Wilbur M. Phillips, supervisor of transportation in the Washington county schools, and John Fitzwater, supervisor in the Garrett county schools.

Instructors will include Miss Lila F. Brown, Calvin, W. Va.; Mrs. Morley J. Mays, Bridgeport, Va.; Miss Esmah Orcutt, Parkersburg, W. Va.; the Rev. Miss Lamour and her husband meanwhile had left for home in the other car.

When the entire family had arrived at the Howard home outside Baltimore, a quick check was made of the baggage, and the loss was discovered.

The stolen suitcase contained a jewel case which the actress said had been on her lap on the trip to Baltimore. At the last moment she decided to lock it in the bag rather than take it with her into the hotel.

Miss Lamour said it was the first time since she left the West coast that the case had been out of her possession.

Howard's first reaction to the theft was: "What about my dog tags? I'm more interested in them. I carried them all the while I was in the army."

2. Consolidation of "certain existing wage payments into basic rates."

3. Adjustment of vacation, holiday overtime and severance compensation.

and causing other damage. The building was formerly the West Side school and youths enter the lot in the afternoon and evenings, he said. One boy threw a rock and broke a window in the Pirie home, he said, and the boy's mother was quoted as saying: "He can play there all he wants to, as long as I pay for the windows he breaks."

Narrowly Averted Accident
Pirie also reported that a fence post was placed in the driveway and his sister narrowly averted an accident when putting the car in the garage.

The name of Mrs. Lloyd B. Shaw, Barton, was presented to the board for possible appointment next month to fill a vacancy on the welfare board.

called police, and returned to assist the girl. Several other persons assembled and the police cruiser which was on upper Virginia avenue arrived in a very few minutes, he said.

Leasure accompanied the police in search of the auto, and they found a brown sedan parked almost sideways along River avenue, near the Wiley Ford, W. Va., bridge. Holt was seated in the car, on the right side, Leasure said, and was either drunk or asleep. The left front head lamp of the machine was missing, he declared.

Police officers who investigated the case testified that Holt was extremely drunk and that a pint bottle of liquor "almost empty," was in the car. They told the court the head lamp picked up at the scene of the accident fitted the car Holt was in.

Ryan, assisted by William L. Wilson Jr., followed a line of questioning in an effort to show that some person other than Holt was driving the car at the time. Leasure and police said they saw no tracks in the snow which would indicate that some person had stopped the car and run away.

Holt told the court he had been drinking, but that he did not remember hitting any one or driving down Virginia avenue.

Agrees To Pay $2,000
The court was told by Ryan that an agreement had been made between Holt and Miss Bennett for Holt to pay her $2,000 over a period of time to compensate her for her injuries and expenses which resulted.

Ryan asked the court to be lenient and if possible merge some of the charges or suspend the fines. He said Holt has eight children and any fines imposed will make it that much more difficult for Holt to pay Miss Bennett anything. Fletcher told the court "it is my opinion Miss Bennett won't get much out of him anyway."

Magistrate Perdue said he was not inclined to put any weight on the theory that someone else was driving the car, and that this appeared to be a case of negligence and drunkenness. He reminded those present that he could fix a fine of $1,000 in this case. He then imposed fines of $200 for leaving the scene of an accident, $100 for drunk driving and $50 for reckless driving.

Ryan indicated an appeal will be filed.

business, and need the immediate elimination of wartime bureaucratic control of our nation, and the return of government by constitutional law. We need a return of the opportunity, without strings, of free enterprise, the kind that made this the greatest nation on the face of the globe.

W. Rodes Lewis, Arlington, Va., lieutenant governor of the First division, was present and extended greetings to the club. Hellman was introduced by Harold W. Smith, a past lieutenant governor in the First division. Gifts of glassware were presented Hellman and Lewis, on behalf of the Cumberland club by O. J. Hale, club president.

A fine musical program was presented preceding the speaking. Miss Kathryn McDonald played two piano solos and the Elks Quartet, with Mrs. Kenneth Beck as accompanist sang three selections.

Mason Dairy
Bowman's Addition answered a call about 8 a. m.

Limited Water Supply
Firemen said they were hampered by a limited water supply and that the LaVale and Corriannville departments used small pumps to draw water from a stream running through the property. Cressapton used water from its booster tank and so did other companies.

LaVale and Cressapton firemen remained on the scene until 5 p. m., yesterday, wetting down the smoldering hay and Elmer T. Beachley, LaVale, reported the fire "completely out" after members of his company returned to their station. Corriannville and Bowman's Addition companies left the scene about noon, Beachley said.

B. A. Mason, Jr., and his brother, John T. Mason, have operated the dairy since their father died about a year ago. The former said there would be no interruption to service.

The barn was built in 1929 to replace one destroyed by fire.

Boy Scout Council Secures 50 Army Mountaineer Tents

There is no reason at all now why Potomac council boy scouts need hesitate about scheduling overnight hikes next winter, for they will be equipped with fifty of the finest mountaineer tents that were manufactured for the United States Army.

The tents, constructed of waterproofed balloon silk and nylon, were received yesterday by Kenneth E. Jackson, scout executive of Potomac council. All of the equipment was declared surplus by the army and sold through the War Assets Administration.

Jackson said the tents will replace the regular scout shelter tent and added that the tents were obtained for $4.70 delivered. A regular scout pup tent with closed front costs $7.50. Each tent cost the army $27.50.

The two-man tents, about forty-three inches wide and about the same height, are equipped with collapsible poles and weigh five and one-quarter pounds without the poles. Since the tent is equipped with a floor it will be especially useful in inclement weather.

The mountaineer tent is ventilated fore and aft, Jackson said, and has a round igloo entrance in front. Mosquito netting is sewn into all openings of the tent.

The tents were designed by the quartermaster corps for use by mountain troops and soldiers who were required to fight under Arctic conditions.

The scout executive added that the council has ordered surplus sleeping bags and screen wire that can be used to advantage here.

—School savings in Britain since the war have reached $400,000,000, equal to $168 for each saver.

School Officials

operate and maintain the vehicles, and the use of the buses for anything other than school purposes.

H. E. McBride, superintendent of Cecil county schools, presided at a forum when the topic of "selecting and training drivers" was discussed. This discussion was broken down into two main topics, established standards of driving and personal qualifications of drivers.

It was while the latter topic was being discussed that Dr. Featherston spoke on the effectiveness of high school students as school bus drivers providing they are carefully selected and trained, telling the group, "the driving record is far more important than how long an operator has been driving."

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., state superintendent of schools, spoke briefly at the conclusion of the discussion and asked Arthur Ramey, supervisor of pupil personnel in Allegany schools and director of the pupil transportation program, to present and explain the new family census form which he has developed.

Will Be Permanent Record
The new form, a streamlined model, is less than half the size of the former chart, and has eliminated considerable duplication. While the old form could be used only three years, the new form will be a permanent record.

The group went to Allegany high school for luncheon yesterday noon and later a tour of the Celanese plant concluded the visit of the school officials to Allegany county.

The host-officials were glad to report yesterday that Willard Davis, Talbot county superintendent, who was ill Thursday, was able to participate in yesterday's program.

Other guests who were not present the first day were Philip A. Rauth, president of the Washington county board of education, and Wilbur M. Phillips, supervisor of transportation in the Washington county schools, and John Fitzwater, supervisor in the Garrett county schools.

Church Leadership Course Scheduled To Begin Monday

Approximately 100 church Sunday school teachers and workers have registered to attend sessions of a standard leadership training school to be held Monday through Friday of next week in the auditorium and six classrooms at Centre Street Methodist church.

The Rev. Ray L. Henthorne, pastor of First Christian church and dean of the school, said that those who have not yet registered may do so on Monday. The school is sponsored by the Cumberland Ministerial Association, and arrangements were made by a general committee under the leadership of the Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist church.

Six courses will be offered, with sessions each evening. Subjects to be discussed include guiding the religious growth of beginners, primary, junior, intermediate and adult church groups, and methods of conducting vacation church schools. In addition, a course for ministers will be held, including reviews of five theological books by local pastors.

The Rev. David C. Watson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church, is chairman in charge of the latter course.

Instructors will include Miss Lila P. Brown, Calvin, W. Va.; Mrs. Morley J. Mays, Bridgewater, Va.; Miss Esmah Orcutt, Parkersburg, W. Va.; the Rev. Donald Schlicher, pastor of the Evangelical and Reformed church of Oysterburg, Pa.; the Rev. W. W. Delaplaine, Baltimore, Methodist pastor; and Miss Harriett Hardy, Lexington, Ky.

Textbooks will be on sale at Centre Street Methodist church at the beginning of the school and during the week. Most churches are paying the $1 registration fee for their teachers and workers who will take the course, the Rev. Mr. Henthorne said.

Some Interesting Table Prospects

THERE HAVE BEEN so many unpleasant things to face these days and so many inconveniences, even downright hardships, by reason of disrupted economic conditions and the blundering of the bureaucrats, that it may not be out of place to contemplate for the nonce some of the pleasing things in store for us in the future.

Some of these days—and every last one of us hopes the time will not be long in coming—the people of this country will be able to purchase what they want to eat, and it will be a bright enough prospect. That is a bright enough prospect, but there are forecasts that it will be even brighter.

These are reported in a special dispatch from San Diego, Calif., by a roving investigator of the "Wall Street Journal," Robert P. Brundage, who notes that in San Diego county, where the climate is like parts of India, Africa and Latin America, nearly every "sub-tropical" fruit of the world, or a close relative, is being raised for prospective future American markets. Included are cherimoya, sapotas, carissas, catties, pomegranates, passion fruit, persimmons, lemon guavas, loquats, limequats, feijoes, even cactus and, of course, the avocado.

A few of these are not new but the most of them are. But the growing of all these sub-tropical rarities is more than a horticultural game or a wealthy man's hobby. Stimulated by the marked success of the avocado, hundreds of growers are furthering a campaign to produce commercially a new "taste treat" for the American table, something which has become possible by scientific research and modern refrigeration. Not many years ago the avocado was just another "orphan" fruit, a sort of novelty as it were to be toyed with only by the rich. But now it is an important product and several thousand California farmers will this year market close to forty million pounds of them, worth some $5,000,000.

Of all these "rare" sub-tropicals, the cherimoya seems to have the backing of the most experts. Cherimoya means "cold seeds" in the Peruvian-Indian dialect and is a native of Ecuador and Peru. A good one is a delicious combination of delicate flavors, like a cross between a pineapple and a banana. The cherimoya doesn't have much eye appeal. The most of them are greenish-brown when ripe, about avocado size or bigger, and may be shopped like anything from a bell to a top-sized baseball. The surface is almost smooth or covered with wart-like bumps. They have bluish-black seeds, watermelon seed size. They are nice with fruit salads.

Apple size, with the color and skin texture of pears, the white sapota, now chiefly raised, when chilled tastes a lot like vanilla ice cream, or like a cross between a banana and a pear. It lacks the tang of the cherimoya, however.

Mangoes, which are the color of red wax, though smooth-skinned and twice as big and even, bears a taste a delicious ice cream. The actus fruit, known as "tuna" cactus, is hand-grenade size with a tickly green skin, which peels off to show light pink melon-colored flesh, like a watermelon and is nearly as pink inside.

Lemon guavas are many times richer in vitamin C than either oranges and tomatoes. They have a husky flavor and look like yellow tomatoes inside and out. Mainly reserved in this country for the better eating favorite with, they are neither catfish, called "strawberry guavas", nor feijoes, called "pineapple guavas", are actually guavas. Both are good in short-cakes, or "patal plum", a thorny shrub popular for low hedges, bears a plum-looking fruit that tastes bitter eaten out of hand but makes "the cranberry sauce of the tropics."

Loquats, really oriental, are small, oval, yellow-orange and grow in bunches. They taste like some kinds of table grapes. Kumquats, which look like tiny oblong oranges, have a bitter rind, a sweet inner lining and sour meat. The limequat is a cross between a lime and a kumquat.

Some experts think the most promising of the sub-tropicals is a marble-size nut named "Brazil nut," originated in Brazil, but presently a serious harvesting problem. You need a hammer to crack it.

All these prospective additions to the American table are excitingly mouth-watering. When the days of better food supplies come, they will undoubtedly be welcomed. The prospects are sufficient to prompt everybody to do what he can to encourage production in other lines, since that is the key to the widening of our markets.

A Unique Observance By the Shriners

THERE IS hardly a day or week in the year which is not set aside officially or otherwise, in behalf of something or other. There is a day or a week dedicated to shirts, cravats, neckties, jewelry, pipes, travel, and what have you.

There are weeks set aside as drives for money for charities of every sort imaginable. Sunday, April 28, however, marks a unique observance. It will be the national observance of Shriners' hospitals for Crippled Children day. It is unique in that it asks no one of anything. In fact, it is a day of giving. During the 354 other days of the year, during which crippled children from every part of North America are given the finest medical treatment it is possible to procure in the fifteen hospitals for crippled children maintained by the Shrine in the United States, Canada and Hawaii. The Shrine pioneered this movement twenty-four years ago with the establishment of their first hospital in Shreveport, Louisiana. Today the Shrine hospitals represent an investment of more than $45,000,000, including endowments, with yearly operating budgets in excess of $1,250,000 a year. Since they opened, these hospitals have discharged more than 100,000 patients as cured or improved to the extent that they have gone out into the world and have taken their useful places in society.

There has never been a paid patient at any one of these hospitals. They are open to any afflicted child under the age of 14 without regard to race, color or creed. And, without exception, these children must come from families unable to pay for highly specialized medical attention.

The 500,000 members of the Shrine of North America, belonging to 150 Shrine temples, foot this bill themselves. Of course, the hospitals accept outright gifts and legacies. But the hospitals are prohibited by Shrine law from accepting money from any organization which solicits the public for funds. It is, indeed, a unique observance, representing a great work, for which the Shriners deserve the commendation of the whole people.

Where Mysteries Really Abound

BOB HOPE, in one of his forthright contributions, indulges in some fantastic comical conjectures about the mass production of mystery stories—watch for it. But he overlooks an important source of mystery, which lies in the national capital and concerns the blunderings of bureaucracy.

How these blunderings do great harm to the earnest efforts that are being made to straighten out our dislocated economy is shown in a dispatch from Kansas City. It reports the assertion of officers of the Armour meat packing company that the OPA "made the unbelievable mistake of confusing dollars and pounds of meat" in arriving at figures on which the agency based a recent statement that the "Big Four" packers were refusing to buy cattle.

W. S. Clithero, Armour vice-president in charge of all livestock buying, flew in from Chicago to demand retraction of statements made by OPA enforcement attorneys, Richard F. Bennett and Joseph Korachuk.

The OPA officials had said that a month's study of the meat-packing situation indicated big packers could operate at a profit under OPA ceiling prices but instead are "just refusing to buy" cattle for slaughter.

"x x x They (the OPA) claim that Armour and Company x x x in January, 1945 paid $9,189,000 for 18,200 head of cattle," Clithero said in a pre-press statement. "x x x Somewhere in the process of preparing the Korachuk-Bennett statement the figure of 9,189,000 which was the dressed weight in pounds of the 18,200 head of cattle, acquired a dollar sign, whereas the correct purchase price x x x was $2,032,418, or $11.00 per head."

The fantastic figure used by the OPA in its statement, Clithero continued, "would mean that that purchase price of the cattle was $504 per head, which even a novice knows would be a ridiculous price per animal."

Herein Clithero patiently put the blame of the error on the OPA. The famous bureaucratic inefficiency is only one in a long chain of mistakes demonstrating that the sooner we get bureaucracy curbed and shorn of its excessive powers and prerogatives the better off the country will be.

Court Cleavage Is Seen Emphasized On State Rights

You read speculation about the successor of Chief Justice Stone. Involvement in that, you read about the difference of view which has existed in the court, and which has a part in the selection of the new chief justice, is, in fact, a legal technicality. Much of this, being legally technical, is confusing. But it is made clear by one case the court decided some two years ago. The case is simple, as supreme court cases go.

Omitting technicalities, there was one question on which the justices differed directly and strongly. This was, whether the insurance business should be regulated by the federal government—or by the states, as it now is and always has been.

Four justices, a majority of the seven justices sitting, said in effect, yes, the insurance business is a matter for federal regulation. Their spokesman was Justice Hugo Black.

Three justices said no, regulation of insurance should be left with the states. Two of the three were Chief Justice Stone and Justice Robert H. Jackson. The third, Chief Justice, was Chief Justice Stone, who, incidentally, expressed himself vigorously.

Established Doctrine Out
Mr. Stone said that the immediate effect of the decision is to withdraw from the states "the regulation of insurance and to confer it on the national government." This, Mr. Stone said, is "overturning the precedents of seventy-five years."

Justice Jackson was equally forthright, and very earnest: "The states began nearly a century ago to regulate insurance. . . If this function is taken from them, Justice Jackson said, the states 'lose very important controls and very considerable revenues.' Eloquently he added: 'To use my office with so little justification in necessity; to dislocate the functions . . . of the states . . . is more than I can reconcile with my view of the function of this court in our society.'"

Justice Jackson brought up the deepest of the issues about which controversy seethes within the court, and itself, in the legal profession, in Congress, and in public discussion. Justice Jackson said that the supreme court was legislating, that it was doing a thing which Congress itself had not seen fit to do:

"Recklessness" Emphasized
The "recklessness" of such a course is emphasized when we consider that Congress has not one line of legislation deliberately designed to take over fed-

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pearson Pays Tribute to Harlan Stone, A Boy at Heart, Inspiration to Youth

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, April 26.—If I were to choose a leading American of 1946 as an inspiration to my son, I think I would pick the man who died in harness this week as chief justice of the United States. I would choose him not only because of his great attainments, not only because he rose so high from such humble beginnings, but because he never lost his youth. Even up until that last day and that last faltering opinion, Harlan Fiske Stone kept his zest for living.

Despite sedate years on the nation's highest court, there was a lively, boyish quality about Chief Justice Stone. In his home, for instance, was the fulfillment of every small boy's dream—a secret button which caused a bookcase to swing aside, revealing a hidden door. This hidden door led to a secret passageway from the chief justice's study to his dining room.

All too soon, most of us lose our boyhood dreams of hidden doors and secret passageways come true. Some parents, of course, might not agree that the pixie in Stone's heart set a proper example for their sons. They might even be shocked to learn that while at Amherst, the chief justice led a raid on a Boston express office and stole the statue of Sabrina, goddess of Amherst men, spirited it away from Amherst, Mass., and hid it in a Chesterfield, N. H., barn. Some years later, Stone married the daughter of the man who owned that barn.

"Harlequin" Stone
In fact there were a lot of things about young Harlan Stone that meticulous parents might not approve. Some of his neighbors even thought his name should have been "Harlequin" for he led so many youthful night-shirt and ducking parties that eventually he was expelled from an agricultural college.

I would pick Harlan Stone as a model for my boy, despite all this, because shortly thereafter he managed to harness his exuberance and worked his way through Amherst by peddling typewriters, selling insurance and tutoring other students. He paid his college expenses every cent of the way.

And he proved—as Douglas MacArthur also demonstrated by standing first in his class at West Point—that a boy's start in college sets the pace for what comes after. Stone served for three years as president of his class, attained Phi Beta Kappa in his junior year, managed the Amherst Student, played a star game of football, and was voted by his classmates "the member who would become most famous."

Perhaps Calvin Coolidge, who was one class behind Stone, remembered that record when Coolidge—suddenly catapulted from the vice-presidency into the White House—looked around for a new attorney general and finally selected his old college-mate who had worked so hard and done so well at Amherst.

Later, Stone worked his way through Columbia law school, and finally was graduated despite forced interruptions when he recouped his expenses by teaching school in Vermont. And during all the fame that followed, Stone never forgot those beginnings, never was to busy to help the youngsters who, like himself, struggled to finish college.

Stone the Teacher
One of these was William O. Douglas, a penniless law student at Columbia when Stone was dean of the law school. Most busy college executives would have given Douglas a five or ten-minute pep talk; but Dean Stone devoted two hours to telling Douglas of his own problems in getting through college and in advising him what to do. This week, that same William O. Douglas, now a Supreme court justice, was beside his old teacher when he was stricken on the bench. Every year the chief justice brought a Columbia law graduate to Washington to be his secretary.

Of course, was a definite inconvenience, since it meant breaking in a new man every year. But the chief justice wanted to help launch young men into the world of law. And every week his home was a mecca for young people in and out of government who crowded around the chief justice at Mrs. Stone's.

Majority for Federal Extension
A majority of the Roosevelt appointees, and hence a majority of the court, are prevalently disposed to extend the jurisdiction of the federal government, reduce that of the states. Some time ago the court considered whether the federal government had authority over a Virginia stream, the New River. Forty-one governors realizing the issue pleaded for the rights of the states. But the court decided for federal jurisdiction—doing so by an extreme interpretation of the constitutional term, "interstate commerce" and an interpretation of "navigation" and "navigable streams" so far-reaching as potentially to include tiny creeks.

Observing the decision of the court, the late Wendell Willkie, himself a good lawyer, handed down a judgment of his own, in the form of a wisecrack. With a rugged directness which sometimes expressed itself in homely figures of speech, Mr. Willkie said, "It's getting so you've got to be careful when you pull the chain in your bathroom."

Nazi News Policy Used by Russia Curbs Friendship

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The American government's inability to comprehend the Russian viewpoint on current international questions is well known, but some of the paradoxes and contradictions that lead to such a state of mind have not been disclosed.

Thus government officials here receive every day from Moscow excerpts from the Russian press and radio broadcasts. Day in and day out these dispatches are studied because they are published only with the permission of the Russian government.

Scarcely a day goes by that the Russian press does not select for emphasis some article taken from the American press which is a criticism of the policies of the United States government. Anybody who speaks out against American policy is given prominence in the Russian newspapers. The other day an American author wrote a book revealing some differences of opinion between American and British military leaders over campaign strategy in the war. This was given sensational emphasis in Russia.

Friction Is Promoted

The tendency appears to be to accentuate articles that have produced or are likely to produce friction or bad feeling between America and Britain. Under a system of free press this is permissible and understandable, because any newspaper should have the right to print or emphasize what it pleases. But in Washington it has been repeatedly stated by the Russians that the only reason for their control of the press is to maintain friendly relations with foreign powers and that criticisms or dispatches in the newspapers which tend to promote ill-feeling are controlled and can be suppressed.

Throughout the Balkans the Russian conception of censorship has been imposed on the smaller states by the iron hand of Moscow and the argument in defense usually is that the dispatches going out of such countries may possibly reflect on the country in question in relation to the outside world.

If, therefore, the Russian point of view is that a controlled or censored press is necessary in order to prevent peoples from being inflamed against one another by unfriendly dispatches, then the Moscow government certainly has its tongue in its cheek as it allows criticism of the American government as well as the given display in the Russian newspapers.

Suppressed, Not Desired

Nobody here wants to see any of this criticism suppressed but would ask that the Russians allow the other side of the controversy also to be printed or at least to permit the Russian people to be told when a minority or a majority sentiment in the United States is being transmitted.

The Russians, however, are adamant against allowing anything except what the Moscow government wants printed to be published. This tends to make the Stalin government responsible for everything that appears in the press in Russia. Foreign governments now feel that an attack on the United States or Britain through "Pravda" or "Red Star" or "Izvestia" is the same as attacking the Russians.

Chips from a Granite Life

Most people have forgotten, but it was Harlan Stone to whom the nation owes a debt for picking J. Edgar Hoover as head of the FBI. Under Harry Daugherty, William J. Burns had run wild with the FBI and, when Stone became attorney general, he swept out Burns and selected a young career man, Hoover, to take his place. So no one had ever heard of Hoover before. Stone was kicked upstairs from the Justice department to the Supreme court by Coolidge when Stone dared move against Andrew Mellon's aluminum trust. It was then a fellow member of the Coolidge cabinet. Almost two decades passed before the Justice department, under hard-hitting Thurman Arnold, finally brought the aluminum trust before the Supreme court. Stone, at that time, had to disqualify himself because of earlier connections with the Justice department. So many other justices had to also that the Supreme court couldn't sit on aluminum at all. The chief justice always had a silver medicine ball on his desk, memento of his membership in the Herbert Hoover medicine-ball cabinet. Despite this, Hoover, without mentioning names, launched a bitter attack at Stone's dissent in the AAA case. The chief justice never resented the attack and never let it influence his friendship with Hoover.

The Tonic of Wilderness

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

There must be a strange tonic effect to wilderness, else so many would not seek it. I have listened to the talk of early pioneers, and to those who have hunted and adventured in wild places, and this talk is always fascinating and instructive.

Men complain about the simplest of inconveniences, under the ordinary routine of life, but they seem to welcome the test of the courage and endurance, when adventuring in the wild. Is it because Nature is such a wonderful host? Hudson, the naturalist, was never so happy as when riding his horse across the miles of the Argentine pampas. Almost wild in his nature, he always felt at home among all of the forces of nature, welcoming every inhabitant, whether bird or beast.

Getting next to the elemental things of life is always stimulating, and revealing as well. It is from them that we build. There is so much to be observed, and learned, in every wild country. Nature there seems to be so blunt in all her expressions. Someone is always dreaming of the unexplored. In wild nature every living thing takes advantage of every element and every aid. I keep in my memory a great tree that I looked upon in a great tree of existence. It had grown about its trunk, until it had almost held it within its trunk, its roots looking like arms that one day may completely encircle the tree. Yet its life is dependent upon the earth and upon its rich substances, for long life. Everything co-operates in wild nature.

The record business is having the biggest boom in its history. Recordings of anything are selling like hotcakes. (With the syrup shortage, hot cakes aren't going so well this season.)

But even people who don't have machines to play them on are buying records. They take them home and sit around in the evening and feel the grooves!

People these days will buy anything that even looks like a record. I saw a record fan go into a bakery the other day, look at the doughnuts and say, "What's on the other side?" He finally bought a doughnut, took it home, put it on his phonograph and let the needle slide around in the powdered sugar . . . and it came out Wayne King.

But any sort of novelty record does great nowadays! The other day Andy Russell got the hiccups and they stuck a microphone in front of his face, put a bass fiddle in the background and sold 5,000 copies of the recording. (On the back they had the minute transcription of a bicarbonate tablet fizzing.)

And Spike Jones's music is getting so popular in the jukeboxes, Spike decided to enlarge his orchestra. He just added three more washboards and a Murphy bed. They're putting out a lot of hot numbers now like "Cement Mixer, Putt-T, Putt-T," "I'm working on a sequel to that one called, "Pinball Machine, Tilt-Teel, Tilt-Teel" (Copyright 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Angina Pectoris Is Hard To Treat, Doctor Asserts

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Angina pectoris, a serious disease affecting the heart, is difficult to treat, but if the patient grants his physician complete co-operation much can be done to avert its worst effects.

As a matter of fact, the real trouble lies not with the heart itself but with the arteries which supply it with blood and hence with vital oxygen and necessary food. In angina pectoris, these vessels, known as the coronary arteries, are subject to sudden spasm, which momentarily cuts off oxygen from the heart and causes great pain.

This pain, which may be agonizingly severe, centers usually under the breastbone, shooting upward into the neck and downward along the left arm.

A diagnosis of angina pectoris usually can be made by the symptoms which the patient has. An electrocardiogram or electrical tracing of the heart beat is helpful.

Many Forms of Treatment
Many forms of treatment have been employed for this condition, but cures are difficult to obtain.

However, it has been reported that the giving of testosterone propionate reduces the frequency and severity of the attacks, makes it possible for the patient to exercise to a greater extent, and produces a feeling of well-being. In some instances, it would appear that there is a gradual recurrence of symptoms when the treatment is stopped, and in some cases no improvement whatsoever occurs.

In order to tell more definitely just what effects the testosterone may have, a plan of treatment was started by Dr. Samuel Waldman, of Brooklyn, in which the electrocardiogram or electric tracing of the heart beat, was used as a measure of improvement.

In carrying out this plan, the electrocardiogram was made in the usual way. Then each patient exercised by walking up two nine-inch steps, walking down the same number of steps and repeating.

After this exercise, an electrocardiogram was again taken. It was found that in patients with angina pectoris the exercise caused patients were given sedative or quieting drugs, or nitroglycerine, which dilates or relaxes the blood vessels.

Following this period each patient was given an injection into a muscle of testosterone propionate twice a week for a period of eight weeks. In addition, nitroglycerine was used whenever necessary to relieve attacks. At the end of this period of treatment the electrocardiograms were again made.

This plan was followed in studying ten white men ranging in age from 43 to 58 years. Of the ten, seven showed definite improvement following the treatment. Of the three who did not, two showed evidence in the electrocardiogram that continued damage to the coronary arteries was taking place.

Hence, Dr. Waldman concludes that in those instances of angina pectoris in which continued damage to the coronary arteries is occurring the testosterone treatment may not be expected to give much help. When an acute attack occurs, the testosterone is not of value. For these acute attacks nitroglycerine is usually employed.

Questions and Answers

T. R. W.: My hands and my whole body quiver. Is there some thing that can be done to cure this?

Answer: It is not clear as to what is causing your trouble. It may be due to some nervous disturbance or some actual disease of the nerves. It is advisable that you have a careful study made by a neurologist if possible.

I. J.: What is diathermy? Will it give results?

Angina Pectoris Is Hard To Treat, Doctor Asserts

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Angina pectoris, a serious disease affecting the heart, is difficult to treat, but if the patient grants his physician complete co-operation much can be done to avert its worst effects.

As a matter of fact, the real trouble lies not with the heart itself but with the arteries which supply it with blood and hence with vital oxygen and necessary food. In angina pectoris, these vessels, known as the coronary arteries, are subject to sudden spasm, which momentarily cuts off oxygen from the heart and causes great pain.

This pain, which may be agonizingly severe, centers usually under the breastbone, shooting upward into the neck and downward along the left arm.

A diagnosis of angina pectoris usually can be made by the symptoms which the patient has. An electrocardiogram or electrical tracing of the heart beat is helpful.

Many Forms of Treatment
Many forms of treatment have been employed for this condition, but cures are difficult to obtain.

However, it has been reported that the giving of testosterone proportionate reduces the frequency and the severity of the attacks makes it possible for the patient to exercise to a greater extent, and produces a feeling of well-being. In some instances, it would appear that there is a gradual recurrence of symptoms when the treatment is stopped, and in some cases no improvement whatsoever occurs.

In order to tell more definitely just what effects the testosterone may have, a plan of treatment was started by Dr. Samuel Waldman, of Brooklyn, in which the electrocardiogram or electric tracing of the heart beat, was used as a measure of improvement.

After this exercise, an electrocardiogram was again taken. It was found that in patients with angina pectoris the exercise caused changes in the electrocardiogram. Seven of Ten Improve For the first two months the testosterone was not employed. The patients were given sedative or quieting drugs, or nitroglycerine, which dilates or relaxes the blood vessels.

Following this period each patient was given an injection into a muscle of testosterone propionate twice a week for a period of eight weeks. In addition, nitroglycerine was used whenever necessary to relieve attacks. At the end of this period of treatment the electrocardiograms were again made.

This plan was followed in studying ten white men ranging in age from 43 to 58 years. Of the ten, seven showed definite improvement following the treatment. Of the three who did not, two showed evidences in the electrocardiogram that continued damage to the coronary arteries was taking place.

Hence, Dr. Waldman concludes that in those instances of angina pectoris in which continued damage to the coronary arteries is occurring the testosterone treatment may not be expected to give much help. When an acute attack occurs, the testosterone is not of value. For these acute attacks nitroglycerine is usually employed.

Questions and Answers
T. R. W.: My hands and my whole body quiver. Is there some thing that can be done to cure this?
Answer: It is not clear as to what is causing your trouble. It may be due to some nervous disturbance or some actual disease of the nerves. It is advisable that you have a careful study made by a neurologist if possible.

I. J.: What is diathermy? Will it give results?
Answer: Diathermy is a form of electrical treatment for producing heat deep in the tissues. It is helpful in clearing up certain types of inflammation.

Vet May Borrow On Service Life Insurance Policy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority On Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax: Is it possible to borrow money on a national service life insurance policy? What amount? And what is the rate of interest?

S. M.
At any time after the expiration of the first policy year for which premiums have been paid in full and before default in payment of any subsequent premiums, the insured may borrow money on the security of his national service life insurance permanent policy. A loan agreement satisfactory to the veteran's administrator must be executed on insurance form 1574.

Release Is Possible
Dear Miss Fairfax: My brother enlisted in the regular navy when he was 17 years old without the consent of my parents. He persuaded someone else to sign for my father. Would it be possible for my parents to get him released? Could anything be done after he's 18?

J. R. A.
Your parents should contact the officer at the station at which your brother was recruited to determine whether or not the signature affixed on his papers is legal. If the affixation is found not to be legal, the boy will be eligible for release. If he did not enlist after he reached the age of 18.

Tuition Paid to Institution
Dear Miss Fairfax: My husband is interested in edu-national benefits offered under the GI Bill of Rights. Is the money for tuition, etc., paid to the veteran or to the school or college directly? (MRS.) R. W.

The Veterans' Administration will pay to the educational institution and any laboratory, library and similar payments customarily charged. Sheep-Killing Bear Wears Traps Farmers Set for Him

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., April 26 — It was open season on black bear on Short "A" mountain, near Moorefield, W. Va., last Saturday, and after farmers had bagged the killer of numerous sheep and goats, they also recovered two traps.

Floyd Bott, who was victimized several nights by the bear's raids, set traps. Each morning he found the trap and one of his sheep missing but once two of the bear's teeth were left.

Saturday, when Orion Hines and Junior Saville began trailing the bear they heard a rattling of chains in the bushes nearby. After firing two shots they investigated and found one black bear wearing two traps, one on his right front paw and one on his right hind paw, with two toes on the right front paw missing and measured seven feet in length.

Bott will reset his traps, but this time they will be fastened securely, so future sheep raiders will stay in the traps, not wear them, he said.

Go to Church Sunday - Your Church - Any Church - But Go

THE DREAMER

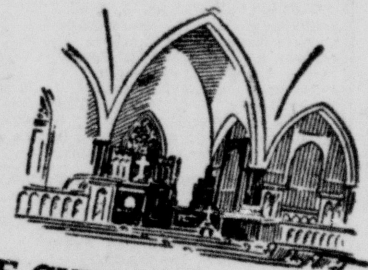

His sister is "growing up," ever becoming more "sensible." But he is still a dreamer . . . forever chewing on a blade of grass and thinking of happy tomorrows . . . forever staring into space to behold the man he wants to become.

The Bible tells of another dreamer—the youthful Joseph. He, too, had visions of great tomorrows . . . that's why his brothers sold him into slavery!

Older folks don't always understand the dreams of youth. Even loving parents sometimes stifle the visions that shine in the eyes of a growing boy. They don't realize that dreams can come true.

The dreams that are written in a boy's bright face are the seeds of great living. But to find root and to bring forth their harvest, they need moral and spiritual nourishment.

The Church understands your child's dreams! The Church's program of religious training aims to develop character, courage and faith. And these turn youthful dreamers into great men!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the Church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday.

St. Louis Rookie Tosses 7-Hitter Against Pirates

Fred Martin Survives Up- rising in Ninth to Bag 3-2 Win

PITTSBURGH, April 26 (AP)—Fred Martin, a rookie pitcher from Cameron, Okla., held the Pittsburgh Pirates to seven hits today as he pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-2 win, nipping off a Buc rally in the ninth.

Going into the ninth inning the 21-year-old Martin had the Pirates and a five-hit shutout well under control. Then, with two men out, Elbie Fletcher walked, and Jimmy Russell doubled him home. Billy Cox singled to score Russell. But Pinch-Hitter Al Gionfriddo rolled to short for the final out. Box:

Keyser Wins Mineral County Track Meet

Victors Top Foot Ashby in Amateur League By Copping Final Event

Keyser Gets 56 Points; Ferriss Pitches Idleman Jumps Five Feet, 10 Inches; Linn's High Scorer

KEYSER, W. Va., April 26.—Keyser high school won the Mineral county track and field meet today, nosing out Fort Ashby 56 to 45 points by capturing the last event on the program—the mile relay.

Fort Ashby trailed by 4½ points prior to the final event in which it finished fourth. Each school had won five first places until Keyser's mile relay quartet of Hal "Doc" Newcome, John Idleman, Glen Workman and Ronald Pantor triumphed to victory.

Piedmont high school finished third with 25 points followed by Ridgeley high with 23½ and Elk Garden with four.

Idleman Stands Out
The program of eleven events was run off in cold weather and was featured by the brilliant performance of John Idleman, of Keyser, who went over the crossbar in the high jump at the height of five feet, ten inches.

Newcome and Idleman, of Keyser, and Don Linn, of Port Ashby, each won two events. Linn captured individual scoring honors with thirteen tallies by winning the 100 and 220 yard dashes and placing third in the broad jump and fourth in the shot put.

Winners Given Medals
Keyser received the county championship trophy and Coach Frederick Clark presented gold medals to winners of individual events and members of each winning relay team. Blue ribbons also went to the winners while red ribbons went to second place finishers, yellow ribbons for third and white ribbons for fourth.

Point scoring for the relays was 10-8-6-4 and in the other events 5-3-2-1.

Keyser high school will be host to the Potomac Valley Conference track and field meet on Saturday, May 4. The summary:

Shot Put—Hal Newcome, Keyser, first; Joe Moss, Ridgeley, second; Bill Treum, Keyser, third; Don Linn, Port Ashby, fourth. Distance—25 feet, 5 inches.

100 Yards Dash—Linn, Port Ashby, first; Dallas Adams, Keyser, second; Tracy Riggs, Piedmont, third; Tim Larson, Port Ashby, fourth. Time—11.2-5 seconds.

WEISS'S DEATH IS ATTRIBUTED TO HEMORRHAGE
PHILADELPHIA, April 26 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Athletic Commission today termed the state's second boxing ring fatality within a month "very unfortunate" but insisted there was nothing more we can do to prevent these things.

Chairman Leon Rains made the statement following the death of Welterweight Harvey Weiss, 24-year-old New Yorker, who collapsed shortly after dropping an eight-round decision to Patsy Gall, Freehold, Pa. Dr. H. A. Fisher attributed the ex-marine's death to cerebral hemorrhage.

Weiss underwent a thorough physical examination prior to the fight at Kingston, Pa., in accordance with commission regulations, Rains said. Adding that Weiss signed a statement he was not hiding any facts about his health.

"There is nothing more we can do to prevent these things," the commissioner said. "There are not as many deaths in the ring as in other sports. We couldn't be more careful than we've been."

Weiss's death followed that of Nat Hines, 24-year-old Philadelphia, after a March 4 fight with Billy Eck of Allentown, Pa. Three other ring deaths occurred this year, Dixon Walker, University of Maryland, in Washington, and Mason Cleveland, at Buffalo, and Jack Con, 22, Aurora, Ore., at Salem, Ore.

SERVO MUST DEFEND TITLE BY SEPT. 6
NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The state boxing commission cracked down today on Mario Servo, the welterweight champion, declared the title vacated and suspended him indefinitely, along with his manager Al Weill—but not really.

What the commission actually did was give Servo until September 6 to go through with his championship fight against Ray Robinson, the Negro challenger, and put him under tight probation until that time.

Chairman Eddie Egan had the boys winging for a while, though, He first announced dramatically to the press that the commission had thrown him in jail, alluding nose and all. Then, just as the rush for the phones was about to begin, the chairman cleared his throat and said "but."

It turned out that Servo would be short of his title and be forced to forfeit $2,000 only in the event that he did not fight Robinson by Sept. 6. The bout originally was scheduled for May 24. Servo, the commission ruled, will not be permitted to fight anyone else until he meets Robinson.

In the meantime, Servo must undergo regular treatments on his nose and his physician must report weekly to the commission on the progress being made.

Bangtails Return Today To Churchill Downs
LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 26 (AP)—The bangtails return to historic Churchill Downs tomorrow with the opening of the 19-day spring meeting, to be featured by the seventy-second running of the Kentucky Derby on May 4.

Winton Made Favorite In Maryland Hunt Cup
GLYNDON, Md., April 26 (AP)—The society and shooting-stick set will gather in Worthington Valley tomorrow for the fifteenth running of the rugged Maryland Hunt Cup, and the watchword for this most famous American steeplechase appeared to be "Win with Winton."

With clear, cool weather forecast, a record throng of 30,000 was expected to witness the four-mile "chase over natural hunting country."

Winton, 12-year-old gelding owned and ridden by Stuart S. Jannet, Jr., will be favored but will have thirteen sturdy opponents, including one saucy youngster, Betty Bosley's Count Stefan.

Beall Noses Out LaSalle, 4-3; Alegany Beats Hyndman, 9-2
NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Mel Ott, manager of the New York Giants announced tonight that pitchers Ace Adams and Harry Feldman had "jumped" the club to play in the Mexican Baseball League.

Ott himself did not know of their departure until he missed them in the pre-game batting drill and went to the clubhouse to inquire as to their whereabouts. There he was informed by other players that both Adams and Feldman had collected their belongings and said they were heading for Mexico.

Beall high school, of Probstburg, Alegany and Fort Hill were returned winners in the opening games of the season yesterday in the Tri-State Baseball Conference in games played at Probstburg, Campobello and Fort Hill.

Jim Delaney, LaSalle pitcher, struck out eighteen Beall batsmen in the Mountain City, but wildness played a prominent part in his downfall and Beall eked out a 4 to 3 decision by scoring twice in the seventh and final frame.

Scott Wins Game
Coach Finzel's outfit put the game on ice in the last stanza when Harold Scott pounded out a timely double to sweep over the tying and deciding tallies. Greis walked, pilfered second and was held at third after Jim Crump's single as a result of Deffenbaugh's perfect throw to the plate. Then Scott hammered home two runs.

Blank, Beall third sacker, belted a home run in the second inning. One of the oddities of the game was the fact that First Baseman Genevieve of LaSalle, failed to make a putout.

In addition to fanning 18, Delaney hit six batsmen and issued two bases on balls.

Fort Hill opened its conference campaign with a 16 to 1 victory over Paw Paw high's Mountaineers. Larry Hansrote tossed a two-hitter for the Sentinels and struck out a half dozen batsmen while his mates pounded Robertson and Taylor for eleven safeties, including five two-baggers. Doman obtained three hits while Michael, Irvin, Mangus and Dick banged out two blows each.

Weinbach Beats Hyndman
Alegany opened defense of its conference title with a 9 to 2 victory over Hyndman (Pa.) high school at Campobello.

The Campers with Lefty Sid Weinbach pitching six-hit ball exploded for three markers in the fifth and four in the sixth off Johnny Waltman to clinch the game.

Singles by Charley Baker and Tom Powers and Jimmie Radcliffe's triple gave AHS two runs in the first inning.

After Hyndman knotted the count in the fifth at 2-2 when Stahlman's timely double drove in a run but AHS won their game in its half of the same frame by scoring thrice on an error, two walks, two wild pitches and Fred Willison's long single.

"Sonny" Lease's single, walks to Baker and John Bachman and Radcliffe's double produced two runs and Waltman's wild pitch and an infield out netted the last two tallies during a 4-run spurge in the sixth.

Baker with two singles and Radcliffe with a double and triple headed the AHS attack while E. Man-son obtained a trio of bingles to lead Hyndman.

Weinbach fanned nine and issued only one pass while Waltman whiffed eleven, gave up six free tickets and uncorked two wild pitches during the game which was played in cold weather. The scores:

Three Hundredth MBS Station Is Starting Today

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The MBS network becomes a 300-station chain, the first on record, Saturday. It will have two programs to celebrate.

In the afternoon at 3 it welcomes WKZZ, of Oil City, Pa., which is the three-hundredth station to join the list, with a half-hour salute.

At night, casting aside regular programs, there will be a two-hour presentation starting at 8, in which a cross section of the network's program talent will be displayed from many angles.

Two orchestras are concluding their broadcast season, the Philadelphia with Eugene O'Malley on CBS at 5 and the Boston symphony with Dr. Serge Koussevitzky on ABC at 9:30.

"Orchestras of the Nation" will have the Southern symphony at 3 on NBC, originating from the Columbia S. C. music festival. Meredith Willson is to guest conduct the Los Angeles symphonic band for MBS at 5:30.

According to the scheduling Bob Hope is listed for two questions. First at 7:30 on CBS is to appear in the Tony Martin show, then at 8:30 on ABC he is to M. C. A. Shriners benefit program for crippled children, being helped out by a lot of Hollywood talent.

"Inside Radio-Tokyo," a recorded series describing experiences of the occupying troops, starts on MBS at 2. Also on MBS at 6 Paul Schubert comes back for a weekly commentary.

Two relay meets are on the list also. Fred Husing does the Penn for CBS at 4:30 and Bill Stern the Drake for NBC at 4:30 and 5:30 while ABC will have the Penn on at 5.

Miss Helen Carey Wins Annual CSMC Oratorical Contest

Director of Organization Is Guest; 175 Persons Hear Four Orators

Winner of the fourteenth annual oratorical contest of the Western Maryland Catholic Students Mission Crusade, held yesterday evening in Carroll hall, was Miss Helen Carey, Mary Immaculate Unit, St. Mary's high school.

The last of the four contestants to speak, Miss Carey's discussion of the contest, "The Catholic Priest, Brother and Sister in Promoting and Maintaining a Just and Lasting Peace" was rated the best by three judges, who listened to the speakers from scattered seats among the audience of approximately 175 persons.

Judges were the Rev. Paul V. Helsey, Kingwood, W. Va.; the Rev. Father Sebastian, T. O. R. Loretta, Pa.; and the Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Catholic church, Frostburg.

Cites Christian Ideals

Discussing the contest from the viewpoint of Christian ideals which must be maintained, Miss Carey cited the ideals of the sanctity of marriage and the home, and the integrity of the individual as part of the valuable teachings of Catholic missionaries.

Catholic priests, brothers and sisters who work in foreign missions devote many years of their lives to raising mankind to a higher level and teaching Christian charity and justice, she declared. Returning veterans have praised their work highly, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China recently referred to workers in Catholic missions as "models" of bravery for his officers to emulate, Miss Carey added.

Using Christ's words, "Without me, you can do nothing," she said, she felt that the Catholic missionaries can give valuable assistance in the spiritual reconstruction of the world, without which material rebuilding is useless.

The Rev. Charles W. Bogan, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church, was chairman, and introduced the contestants. Besides Miss Carey, those taking part in the contest were Miss Patricia Christ, Notre Dame Unit of Catholic Girls Central high school; Miss Patricia Stegmuller, Our Lady's Mission Workers Unit, Ursuline academy; and John Stakem, de LaSalle Unit of LaSalle high school.

Winners from the various sections of Maryland and Washington will compete in the finals May 9 at Seton high school, Baltimore.

Before announcing the decision of the judges, Father Bogan introduced the Right Rev. Lewis C. Vaeth, Baltimore, director of the Catholic Students Mission Crusade, who was guest of honor.

Father Vaeth said in a brief talk that the United Nations movement is doomed to failure unless all nations of the world "return to the word of God." He pointed out that at the UN conference in New York, there was not one word regarding God, morality or religion, stating that without Christian living, world peace is impossible.

Musical selections were presented by choral society of Catholic Girls Central, and the LaSalle glee club.

Mason Dairy Barn Lost in Flames, Will Be Rebuilt

Cost May Exceed $35,000; Fire Burns Cows, Hay and Grain

Rebuilding of a large frame and concrete block barn of the Mason dairy, located near Cresaptown, which was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning, is expected to start in a couple of weeks. B. A. Mason, Jr., one of the operators, said last night.

Construction of the same type of barn that was destroyed is expected to cost in excess of $35,000, partly because of the present high cost of materials, Mason said.

Cause of the fire was not determined last night.

The barn was "full of smoke" about 5:45, Mason recalled, adding that there "was no fire then. When it went, it all went at once. It's hard to tell where the first flames were."

Cows Led To Safety

All of the cows in the barn—55—were led to safety, and any hay burned to death returned to the structure after that, according to Mason. He said he believes five or six young cattle might have died in the flames but that a complete tally of the animals has not yet been made.

Four fire companies answered the call, but were unable to save the building. The concrete block lower section was all that remained and hay was still smoldering late last night.

Besides the loss of the barn, partially covered by insurance, Mason said more than fifty tons of hay worth about $1,500 and grain worth a like amount were lost. The dairy and garage were slightly damaged, he added. A motor for a milking machine, a feed grinder, a small set of scales and other miscellaneous items were burned, but the majority of the equipment was removed from the barn.

Members of the Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Department said they received a call at 5:30 a. m. and were on the scene fifteen minutes later. LaVale firemen said they were called between 6 and 6:05 a. m. and arrived at 6:20. The roof had fallen in by then they added.

The Corriangville volunteers arrived a short time after LaVale and

Low Temperatures Return with Cold Weather in Area

Winter-like weather returned yesterday with temperatures ranging from 32 to 44 degrees being reported in the tri-state area. There also were reports of snow flurries.

Temperatures last night looked like this: Cumberland 44, Thomas, W. Va., 34, Big Savage 34 and Deal, Pa., 32.

Snow flurries were reported early yesterday evening at Deal, and light snow mixed with rain fell for a short time around 5 p. m., at Big Savage.

Taxpayers League Program Praised By Commissioners

Unanimous Resolution Promises Co-operation to County Organization

Simeon W. Green, chairman of the board of county commissioners, presented a resolution at yesterday's meeting of the board praising the objectives of the Taxpayers League of Allegany County and promising the cooperation the board's all-out co-operation.

The resolution was seconded by Commissioner James Holmes and was passed unanimously.

The resolution points out that the board's attention has been called to the fact that similar organizations have been of great benefit to other counties in Maryland in assisting the county commissioners in the matter of reducing the hardships to taxpayers now increasing each year by the necessary and authorized levy of taxes by county and state.

Agree with Objectives

The resolution continued, "Now, therefore, the county commissioners of Allegany county do hereby wish to notify said Taxpayers League and all citizens that the county commissioners are thoroughly in accord with the objects of the league and will at all times seek to co-operate with it by consultations with its members or by the furnishing of data and information from its books and records, and also at any time welcome any plan or suggestions from the league looking towards a better or more economical expenditure of county funds; and further will be glad to consider any plan of action which will permit the functioning of the board and the performance of its legal duties and obligations by a reduction of the tax levy."

The board yesterday received a letter from Carl L. Firlie, 212 North Lee street, who complained that youths playing on the lot adjoining the county board office, Cumberland and Lee streets, were breaking windows in nearby homes.

Election Cost Four Candidates $2,045

Three successful councilmanic candidates and the unsuccessful candidate for mayor in the city election in March had campaign expenses amounting to $2,045, according to statements filed yesterday with Clerk of Court Robert Jackson by William V. Keegan, William J. Edwards and Clifton E. Miller, councilmen, and Frank J. Davis, defeated for mayor by Thomas S. Post.

Davis' expenditures totaled $720, Keegan's $520, Edwards' $450 and Miller's $325.

Davis reported contributions of $70 from friends and said his expenses were $194.40 for radio, $130 for advertising and $95.60 for cars, workers and gasoline.

Keegan listed contributions of $520 from friends, and expenditures of $115 for advertising and $405 for cars and workers.

Edwards reported $450 in contributions from friends and expenses of $85 for advertising and $365 for cars and workers.

The smallest account was turned in by Miller who listed contributions of $125 from friends and expenses of $80 for advertising and $120 for cars and workers.

Carelessness Causes Most Accidents to Children, Pupil Survey Shows

Carelessness was the greatest single cause of 282 accidents to children in the years 1944-45, the survey committee of the Junior safety council will announce this morning at 10:30 o'clock at Central YMCA, where the organization will hear the report of the students who have the half of the total number of accidents in the last two years as reported in the files of Cumberland's two newspapers.

Of the 282 accidents in the two-year period, eighteen were fatal. The committee has been at work for four months on a study of the accidents of children in the Cumberland area and the job involved considerable research. All accidents in which children under 17 years of age were involved for the two-year period were carefully analyzed as to cause, where and when the accident occurred, the type of accident and the seriousness of the injury sustained by the victim. The data collected was charted by the students in the various age brackets covered by the study.

The students were surprised to learn that the cause of more than half of the accidents was carelessness, due to sheer carelessness.

Homes proved to be the most dangerous places for children the results of the chart show. There were 125 accidents to children in homes with streets and roadways accounting for the next highest number of 107.

Gymnasiums, schools and playgrounds showed very low accident totals in this area.

July proved to be the month in which most accidents occurred. Falls accounted for more than one-

Clerks Protest Monday Evening Store Schedule

Special Meeting Is Planned To Discuss Work Schedule Here

Members of Local 654, Retail Clerks International Protective Association, AFL, decided last evening that no clerks will work after 5 p. m. Monday, C. E. Stutzman, president of the Allegany Trades Council, reported.

The union said it would notify Cumberland merchants today of the decision made at a meeting of the Retail Clerks union yesterday at 5 p. m. in the Port Cumberland hotel, Stutzman added. Over 300 clerks attended yesterday's meeting.

Meeting Is Planned

A special meeting of clerks of all Cumberland stores has been called for Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the ballroom of the Port Cumberland hotel to take further action on the issue, union officials reported.

Clerks here are protesting the new shopping schedule announced by Cumberland merchants affiliated with the Mercantile Bureau of Commerce. The schedule as announced in advertisements follows:

Saturdays, 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.; Mondays, 12 noon to 9 p. m., and Tuesday through Friday, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Merchants, in announcing the new schedule, point out that the program gives employees a longer weekend holiday and allows customers one shopping evening.

Stutzman said the union feels the mercantile bureau should have contacted the clerk's union when the schedule was arranged since they are the ones to be affected by the change.

Adopts Summer Hours

Furniture stores here have no formal organization, but the National Summer schedule adopted by furniture dealers may depend upon the action taken by other stores.

One Baltimore street furniture store, in an advertisement in today's News, announced its summer schedule as 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Mondays through Fridays and 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturdays.

Another furniture store manager said flatly, "We are closing at 5 p. m. on Saturdays."

Compiling Envious Records

As a clincher to his argument, Dr. Featherston pointed to a school system in North Carolina where 4,000 high school students are now piloting the system's school buses and are compiling an enviable record for safe and sane driving that has won the admiration of police officers.

However, this is not to be construed as meaning that any high school boy is capable of taking over a school bus and driving it well. Dr. Featherston stressed the fact that students engaged in driving the buses are carefully selected and carefully trained. The students were selected for their good co-ordination, eyesight and other factors and then given a thorough training period with a series of stiff tests. The boys who passed have made excellent drivers, the speaker said.

David W. Zimmerman, state supervisor of special education, presided at yesterday's transportation discussion where the question of public ownership of school buses was taken up. In speaking on the advantages of public ownership, Dr. Featherston said this policy eliminated the question of contracts, made the vehicles available for other school functions such as Thursday night's festival at Fort Hill high school, tended to promote better discipline on the part of drivers since the program is controlled directly by the school boards and last but not least, results in a more effective economy.

In this connection, it was pointed out that public ownership of school buses eliminated contractor profits. Another important point mentioned was that school boards can purchase the vehicles at a lower price than contractors since they are given a discount.

Poses Some Problems

On the other hand, problems connected with the public ownership of school buses include insurance costs, the training of personnel to

Ali Ghan Shrine Here To Observe Hospital's Day

Vanegriff Says Members Will Continue Crippled Children's Work

Howard Vanegriff, Cumberland, potentate of Ali Ghan Shrine Temple, announced yesterday that the temple will co-operate in the national program for providing aid for the Shrine children.

"In each Shrine's heart," declared Vanegriff, "there is a special spot reserved for the crippled child. For 24 years ago, realizing that the organization must undertake a humanitarian project as an incentive to the Shrine members, each Shrine was established in a field which was at that time woefully neglected—orthopedics."

"Since then, more than 100,000 children who entered the 15 hospitals on stretchers or in someone's arms, have walked out into the world to follow normal lives. Each child was a parent who could not afford to pay, and each was admitted without regard to race, color or creed."

With a long waiting list at each of the Shrine's Hospitals for Crippled Children, the organization recently announced a five-point plan of expansion in hope that eventually no child, because of lack of funds, would ever suffer delay in treatment.

National Observance of Shrine's Hospitals for Crippled Children Day will be observed in a commemorative occasion, with each of North America's 500,000 Shrine members dedicating himself anew to the great task undertaken nearly a quarter of a century ago. There will be no fund raising, since the Shrine supports the effort through personal donations, Vanegriff explained.

Charles House, president of the council, will preside at today's meeting. Members of the patrol committee of the Western Maryland Motor Club, the sponsoring organization, will attend.

School Officials Told Youths Make Good Bus Drivers

Hit and Run Case

Before assessing fines totalling $350 and costs against Lloyd K. Hott, Springfield, W. Va., on three motor law violations yesterday in trial magistrates court, Magistrate Frank A. Perdue told witnesses, attorneys and spectators, "This is one of the worst cases of negligence and violations which has ever come before me."

Hott was arrested on a city police warrant, charging reckless driving, drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident in which a person was severely injured. The case was prosecuted by Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney. E. J. Ryan was the defense attorney.

Witnesses testified that on December 18, 1945, between 9 and 9:30 p. m. Miss Elva Bennett, a Celine employee of 1065 Lafayette avenue, was knocked down and seriously injured by an automobile which ran up over the curb at Virginia avenue and Offutt street.

Severely Injured

Miss Bennett, who appeared in court, told Magistrate Perdue that she suffered severe internal injuries and injuries to an arm and has undergone two major operations since the mishap. The young woman indicated she is permanently disabled.

Wesley Shanholts, Green Spring, W. Va., testified he was with Hott earlier in the evening on a tour of several restaurants and "liquor joints" when he left him just before 9 p. m.

Leo R. Leasure, a local bus driver, told the court a car which he later identified as Hott's auto, passed him just before he reached Offutt street, but due to falling snow and snow flurries, he had no right to see the car.

Leasure said the car, a brown sedan was traveling at a "lively clip."

As Leasure, who was driving his own car, approached the intersection, he noticed several objects lying near the curb which he later found to be garbage cans. He also noticed that car tracks ran up over the curb at this point and continued on for about seventy-five feet before they turned back to the street.

Finds Woman in Snow

Stopping to investigate, Leasure discovered the young Bennett woman, her hat, shoes, pocketbook, a couple of small packages and an automobile head lamp lying in the snow. He ran to a nearby store and

Six Slot Machines Taken from FOE Ordered Returned

Judge Mish Says City Has No Authority to Retain Gaming Devices

Six slot machines seized in a police raid on the home of Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, last October 20, were ordered returned to the lodge by Associate Judge Joseph D. Mish, Washington County Circuit Court, as the result of an appeal taken by John H. Hager, a trustee of the lodge.

Hager was fined $100 and costs by Magistrate Frank A. Perdue in police court last night, after the contents, and that upon payment of his fine he is entitled to their return because the only penalty that can be imposed is that prescribed by valid city ordinance.

Makes No Provision

There was no provision in the fact that the legislature gave the mayor and council the right to "restrain and prohibit gaming," according to Judge Mish, but he added that the city ordinance contains no provision for the destruction of machines or confiscation of the same contents. The penalty is a fine or jail sentence.

It is conceded that the only authority under which police can retain devices is under an order passed by the mayor and council on April 23, 1934, Judge Mish said, pointing out that that order was passed in accordance with a recommendation of the grand jury.

The order provides, the jurist said, that all gaming devices confiscated by the police department in the enforcement of the law shall be immediately destroyed under the direction of the police department, provided the devices are not needed for evidence in any prosecution against the owners or operators.

Judge Mish declared the "purpose of this order, no doubt, was to prevent individual members of the police force from using the gaming devices seized in raids and unjustly enriching themselves by appropriating to their own use the contents of the machines."

Not an Ordinance

"This order, however, desirable may be its purpose, does not purport to be an ordinance of the city and does not have the legal effect of an ordinance."

In ruling that the machines should be returned, Judge Mish indicated that had the raid been conducted on a state warrant a "confiscation" would be reached.

The case was submitted to Judge Mish by Estel C. Kelley, counsel for the lodge, and City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett on memoranda. Judge Mish heard the appeal because both of the local circuit court judges are members of the lodge and disqualified from acting in the case.

Police said two five-cent machines, two ten-cent machines, a twenty-five-cent machine and a fifty-cent machine were taken in the raid.

Magistrate Says Violations Are Worst To Come into His Court

Louis Donius, Held For Vagrancy, Gets Suspended Term

Louis Donius, 55, South Cumberland, received a suspended sentence of one year in the house of correction following his conviction in circuit court yesterday on a vagrancy charge by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper.

He was warned that any future violations will result in an automatic prison term. Donius prayed a jury trial when arrested by police several months ago.

Esther Alger, 45, formerly of Wheeling, W. Va., also charged with vagrancy, was convicted when her appeal case was heard by the judges. She had been sentenced to serve 18 months in the house of correction by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., and the sentence was affirmed by the judges. Sentence was suspended on her promise to return to Wheeling and stay out of this county.

Following a private trial in the office of Chief Judge Huster, Charles Fisher, this city, was found guilty of paternity, and was ordered to pay $218 medical expenses incurred by the prosecuting witness, Evelyn Densen, and to pay $7 a month until the child is 18 years old.

Members of the petit jury were excused until Tuesday morning when civil cases are scheduled for trial. All criminal cases and criminal appeals have been disposed of and the judges will hold regular Monday on applications for beer and liquor licenses.

Kiwanis today is in the strongest position in the history of our organization, numerically, financially, and from the standpoint of service which is being given by our clubs. Claude B. Hellman, Baltimore, governor of the Capital Kiwanis District, asserted in an address before the Cumberland club at Central YMCA Thursday at 12:15 p. m., when he made his official visit to the club.

Hellman said Kiwanis has grown each year, under the most difficult economic times in the history of our nation, until today, we have the largest membership in the history of the organization, over 157,000 carefully selected men, the leaders of their business and profession in the principal communities of the North American continent.

Manpower Is Important

Manpower is the motive power of Kiwanis, he said, and as the district governor asserted, adding that is the reason Kiwanis places so much importance on maintaining full membership strength in our club. Selecting quality men of the community to replace men who have for one reason or another been deleted from our membership in order to keep up the high standard of Kiwanis.

Hellman, who is also chairman of the International Committee on Classification and Membership, reported that International is certain to reach its goal of 15,000 new members for 1946. Kiwanis is indeed on the march, he added. He said he knew of no greater satisfaction than that which comes from sharing with another some of the pleasures and satisfactions which we have found in Kiwanis.

The district governor spoke of the International Kiwanis Convention at Atlantic City, June 9 to 13 and urged as many members of the local club as possible to attend. He said there will be interesting and informative programs, based upon Kiwanis objectives, carefully prepared which will be worth going a long way to see and hear.

Kiwanis Service to the underprivileged child and to the youth of our nation has been the beacon that has attracted busy men in all walks of life to join hands in performing a service to the community which in the last thirty-one years we can justly feel proud, Hellman stated.

The work of the local club in underprivileged children, work, as well as in other community activities, was highly praised by the governor.

Build for Peace

Hellman said the theme adopted by Kiwanis International this year is "Build for Peace, Unity, Opportunity," and he urged the local club to do its part along those lines, adding that it is a challenging theme, that stresses the three great needs of this troubled world.

The district governor asserted there should be opportunity for our children to have their rightful heritage of a free nation, embodying all these principles for the good of our forefathers, our brothers and our sons fought. We want this country to be free from all un-Americanisms, and see that there is full opportunity for the returning veteran to a rightful place in the professional and business life of our country.

We need a return of the era when the small man can succeed in

Miss Eileen Carey Wins Annual CSMC Oratorical Contest

Director of Organization Is Guest; 175 Persons Hear Four Orators

Winner of the fourteenth annual oratorical contest of the Western Maryland Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, held yesterday evening in Carroll hall, was Miss Eileen Carey, Mary Immaculate Unit, St. Mary's high school.

The last of the four contestants to speak, Miss Carey's discussion of the contest topic, "The Part Played by the Catholic Missionary Priest, Brother and Sister in Promoting and Maintaining a Just and Lasting Peace" was rated the best by three judges, who listened to the speakers from scattered seats among the audience of approximately 175 persons.

Judges were the Rev. Paul V. Halsey, Kingwood, W. Va.; the Rev. Father Sebastian, T. O. R., Loretta, Pa.; and the Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Catholic church, Frostburg.

Cites Christian Ideals
Discussing the contest topic from the viewpoint of a Christian ideal, which must be maintained, Miss Carey cited the ideals of the sanctity of marriage and the home, and the integrity of the individual as part of the valuable teachings of Catholic missionary workers.

Catholic priest, brothers and sisters who work in foreign missions devote many years of their lives to raising mankind to a higher level and teaching Christian charity and justice, she declared. Returning veterans have praised their work highly, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China recently referred to workers in Catholic missions as "models" of bravery for his officers to emulate, Miss Carey added.

Using Christ's words, "Without me, you can do nothing," as the theme of her closing remarks, Miss Carey said that Catholic missionaries can give valuable assistance in the spiritual rebuilding of the world, without which material rebuilding is useless.

The Rev. Charles W. Bogan, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church, was chairman, and introduced the contestants. Besides Miss Carey, those taking part in the contest were Miss Patricia Christ, Notre Dame Unit of Catholic Girls Central high school; Miss Patricia Stegmaier, Our Lady's Mission Workers Unit, Ursuline academy; and John Stakem, de LaSalle Unit of LaSalle high school.

Winners from the various sections of Maryland and Washington will compete in the finals May 9 at Seton high school, Baltimore.

Director Gives Talk
Before announcing the decision of the judges, Father Bogan introduced the Right Rev. Lewis C. Vaeth, Baltimore, director of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, who was guest of honor.

Mr. Vaeth said in a brief talk that the United Nations movement is doomed to failure unless all nations of the world "return to the cause of God." He pointed out that at the UN conference in New York there "was not one word regarding God, morality or religion," stating that without Christian living, world peace is impossible.

Musical selections were presented by choral society of Catholic Girls Central, and the LaSalle glee club.

Mason Dairy Barn Lost in Flames, Will Be Rebuilt

Cost May Exceed $35,000; Fire Burns Cows, Hay and Grain

Rebuilding of a large frame and concrete block barn of the Mason dairy, located near Cresaptown, was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning, is expected to start in a couple of weeks. B. A. Mason, Jr., one of the operators, said last night.

Construction of the same type of barn that was destroyed is expected to cost in excess of $35,000, partly because of the present high cost of materials, Mason said.

Cause of the fire was not determined last night.

Harry Gunning and Samuel Lease dairy employees, were at work when the former discovered smoke billowing from the hay loft above the barn about 5:30 a. m.

The barn was "full of smoke" about 5:45, Mason recalled, adding that there "was no fire then. When it went, it all went at once. It's hard to tell where the first flames were."

Cows Led To Safety
All of the cows in the barn—95—were led to safety, and any that burned to death returned to the structure after that, according to Mason. He said he believes five or six young cattle might have died in the flames but that a complete tally of the animals has not yet been made.

Four fire companies answered the call, but were unable to save the building. The concrete block lower section was all that remained and hay was still smoldering late last night.

Besides the loss of the barn, partially covered by insurance, Mason said more than fifty tons of hay worth about $500 and grain worth a like amount were lost. The dairy and garage were slightly damaged, he added. A motor for a milking machine, a feed grinder, a small set of scales and other miscellaneous equipment were burned, but the majority of the equipment was removed from the barn.

Members of the Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Department said they received a call at 5:50 a. m. and were on the scene fifteen minutes later. LaVale firemen said they arrived between 6 and 6:06 a. m. and arrived at 6:20. The roof had fallen in by then they added.

Temperatures last night looked like this: Cumberland 44, Thomas, W. Va., 34, Big Savage 34 and Deal, Pa., 32.

Taxpayers League Program Praised By Commissioners

Unanimous Resolution Promises Co-operation to County Organization

Simon W. Green, chairman of the board of county commissioners, presented a resolution at yesterday's meeting of the board praising the objectives of the Taxpayers League of Allegany County and promising the organization the board's all-out cooperation.

The resolution was seconded by Commissioner James Holmes and was passed unanimously.

The resolution points out that the board's attention has been called to the fact that similar organizations have been of great benefit to other counties in Maryland in assisting the county commissioners in the matter of reducing the hardships to taxpayers now increasing each year by the necessary and authorized levy of taxes by county and state.

Agree with Objectives
The resolution continued, "Now, therefore, the county commissioners of Allegany county do hereby wish to notify said Taxpayers league and all citizens that the county commissioners are thoroughly in accord with the objects of the league and will at all times seek to co-operate with the league by the furnishing of data and information from its books and records, and will also at any time welcome any plan or suggestion from the league looking towards a better or more economical expenditure of county funds, and further will be glad to consider any plan of action which will permit the functioning of the board and the performance of its legal duties and obligations by a reduction of the tax levy."

The board yesterday received a letter from Carl L. Price 212 North Lee street, who complained that youths playing on the lot adjoining the county welfare board offices, Cumberland and Lee streets, were breaking windows in nearby homes.

Election Cost Four Candidates $2,015

Three successful councilman candidates and the unsuccessful candidate for mayor in the city election in March had campaign expenses amounting to $2,015, according to statements filed yesterday with Clerk of Court Robert Jackson by William V. Keegan listed contributions of $520 from friends, and expenditures of $115 for advertising and $405 for cars and workers.

Edwards reported $450 in contributions from friends and expenses of $85 for advertising and $365 for cars and workers.

The smallest account was turned in by Piller who listed contributions of $125 from friends and expenses of $80 for advertising and $120 for cars and workers.

Carelessness Causes Most Accidents to Children, Pupil Survey Shows

Carelessness was the greatest single cause of 282 accidents to children in the years 1944-45, the survey committee of the junior safety council will announce this morning at 10:30 o'clock at Central YMCA, where the organization will hear the report of the students who have studied causes of accidents in the last two years as reported in the files of Cumberland's two newspapers.

Of the 282 accidents in the two-year period, eighteen were fatal. The committee has been at work for four months on a study of the reports of accidents in the Cumberland area and the job involved considerable research.

All accidents in which children under 17 years of age were involved in the two-year period were carefully analyzed as to cause, where and when the accident occurred, the type of accident and the seriousness of the injury suffered by the victim. The data collected was charted by the students in the various age brackets covered by the study.

The students were surprised to learn that the cause of more than half of the total number of accidents was due to sheer carelessness.

Homes proved to be the most dangerous place for children in the last two years as reported in the results of the chart show. There were 125 accidents to children in homes with streets and roadways accounting for the next highest number of 107.

Gymnasiums, schools and playgrounds showed very low accident totals in this area.

July proved to be the month in which most accidents occurred. Falls accounted for more than one-

Clerks Protest Monday Evening Store Schedule

Special Meeting Is Planned To Discuss Work Schedule Here

Members of Local 654, Retail Clerks International Protective Association, AFL, decided last evening that no clerks will work after 5 p. m. Monday, C. E. Stutzman, president of the Allegany Trades Council, reported.

The union said it would notify Cumberland merchants of the decision made at a meeting of the Retail Clerks union yesterday at 5 p. m. in the Fort Cumberland hotel, Stutzman added. Over 300 clerks attended yesterday's meeting.

Meeting Is Planned
A special meeting of clerks of all Cumberland stores has been called for Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the ballroom of the Fort Cumberland hotel to take further action on the issue, union officials reported.

Clerks here are protesting the new shopping schedule announced by Cumberland merchants affiliated with the Mercantile Bureau of Commerce. The schedule, as announced in advertisements follows:

Saturdays, 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.; Mondays, 12 noon to 9 p. m., and Tuesday through Friday, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Merchants, in announcing the new schedule, point out that the program gives employees a longer weekend holiday and allows customers one shopping evening.

Stutzman said the union feels the mercantile bureau should have contacted the clerk's union when the schedule was arranged since they are the ones to be affected by the change.

Adopts Summer Hours
Furniture stores here have no formal organization but the News learned last evening that the final summer schedule adopted by furniture dealers may depend upon the action taken by other stores.

One Baltimore street furniture store, in an advertisement in today's News, announced its summer schedule as 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Mondays through Fridays and 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturdays.

Another furniture store manager said flatly, "We are closing at 5 p. m. on Saturdays."

Federal Specialist Says Careful Selection and Training Necessary

High school age boys who are now driving school buses in some school systems are proving superior to adults providing they are carefully trained, Dr. Glenn Featherston, senior specialist in school transportation, United States Education, told state superintendents at their concluding conference here yesterday morning.

While fathers who have been re-buffing their teen-age sons' entreaties to "Let me have the car tonight, pop" with the reply "You're too young" may view such a statement with alarm, Dr. Featherston neatly exploded the theory that older drivers are invariably safe and sure by declaring, "It's not how long a person has been driving that counts—it's how he drives that's important."

Conference members, most of them fathers themselves, smiled when they were reminded that when Uncle Sam wanted good drivers for his planes and tanks in the recent war he didn't pick the fathers to do the job, he picked their sons—and they handled equipment far more expensively and efficiently than their fathers.

As a clincher to his argument, Dr. Featherston pointed to a school system in North Carolina where 4,000 high school students are now piloting the system's school buses and are compiling an enviable record for safe and sane driving that has won the admiration of police officers.

However, this is not to be construed as meaning that any school boy is capable of taking over a school bus and driving it well. Dr. Featherston stressed the fact that students engaged in driving the buses were carefully selected and carefully trained. The students were selected for their good co-ordination, eyesight and other factors and then given a thorough training concluding with a series of stiff tests. The boys who passed have made excellent drivers, the speaker said.

David W. Zimmerman, state supervisor of special education, presided at yesterday's transportation discussion where the question of public ownership of school buses as opposed to private ownership was taken up. In speaking on the advantages of public ownership, Dr. Featherston said this policy eliminated the question of contracts, made the vehicles available for other school functions such as Thursday night's festival at Fort Hill high school, tended to promote better discipline on the part of drivers since the program is controlled directly by the school boards and last but not least, results in a more effective economy.

In this connection, it was pointed out that public ownership of the buses eliminated contractor profits. Another important point mentioned was that school boards can purchase the vehicles at a lower price than contractors since they are given a discount.

On the other hand, the problems connected with the public ownership of school buses include insurance costs, the training of personnel to (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Ali Ghan Shrine Here To Observe Hospital's Day

Vandegrift Says Members Will Continue Crippled Children's Work

Howard Vandegrift, Cumberland, potentate of Ali Ghan Shrine Temple, announced yesterday that the temple will co-operate in the national program for providing aid for crippled children.

The Shrine's Hospital for Crippled Children's Day, tomorrow.

General Douglas MacArthur has been named honorary chairman of this year's celebration by William H. Woodfield, Jr., Imperial Potentate, and serving with General MacArthur, Edgar Guest, General James H. Doolittle, J. Edgar Hoover, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, and Jack Warner, of Warner Brothers Studio in Hollywood, and all officers of the Imperial Divan and the Hospital trustees.

"Each Shrine's heart," declared Vandegrift, "there is a special spot reserved for the crippled child. For 24 years ago, realizing that the organization must undertake a humanitarian project as an incentive, the Shrine pioneered in a field which was at that time woefully neglected—orthopedics."

"Since then, more than 100,000 children who entered the 15 hospitals on stretchers or in someone's arms, have walked out into the world to follow normal lives. Each child was of parents who could not afford to pay, and each was admitted without regard to race, color or creed."

With a long waiting list at each of the Shrine's Hospitals for Crippled Children, the organization recently announced a five-point plan of expansion in hope that eventually a child, because of lack of funds, would never suffer delay in treatment.

National Observance of Shrine's Hospitals for Crippled Children Day will be essentially a commemorative occasion, with each of North America's 500,000 Shriners dedicating themselves anew to the great task undertaken nearly a quarter of a century ago. There will be no fund raising, since the Shrine supports the effort through personal donations, Vandegrift explained. In fact, by-laws forbid the hospitals from accepting money from any organization which solicits funds from the public. Outright gifts and legacies, however, are accepted.

L. K. Hot Fined $350 in December Hit and Run Case

Magistrate Says Violations Are Worst To Come into His Court

Before assessing fines totalling $350 and costs against Lloyd K. Hot, Springfield, W. Va., on three motor law violations yesterday in the magistrate's court, Magistrate Frank A. Perdue told witnesses, attorneys and spectators, "This is one of the worst cases of motor law violations which has ever come before me."

Hot was arrested on a city police warrant, charging reckless driving, drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident in which a person was severely injured. The case was prosecuted by Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney, E. J. Ryan was the defense attorney.

Witnesses testified that on December 18, 1945, between 9 and 9:30 p. m. Miss Elva Bennett, a Celanese employee of 1065 Lafayette avenue, was knocked down and seriously injured by an automobile which ran up over the curb at Virginia avenue and Offutt street.

Severely Injured
Miss Bennett, who appeared in court, told Magistrate Perdue that she suffered severe internal injuries and injuries to an arm and has undergone two major operations since the mishap. The young woman indicated she is permanently disabled.

Leo R. Leasure, a local bus driver, told the court a car which he later identified as Hot's auto, passed him just before he reached Offutt street, but due to falling snow and snow flurries, he was unable to see clearly. Leasure said the car, a brown sedan was traveling at a "lively clip."

As Leasure, who was driving his own car, approached the intersection, he noticed several objects lying near the curb which he first took to be garbage cans. He also noticed that car tracks ran over the curb at this point and continued on for about seventy-five feet before they turned back to the street.

Stopping to investigate, Leasure discovered the young Bennett woman, her hat, shoes, pocketbook, a couple of small packages and an automobile head lamp lying in the snow. He ran to a nearby store and (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Judge Mish Says City Has No Authority to Retain Gaming Devices

Six slot machines seized in a police raid on the home of Cumberland Aerie, No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, last October 20, were ordered returned to the lodge by Associate Judge Joseph D. Mish, Washington County Circuit Court, as the result of an appeal taken by John H. Hager, a trustee of the lodge.

Hager was fined $100 and costs by Magistrate Perdue in a police court case last October 26, and Judge Mish affirmed that decision, pointing out in an opinion that the appeal was taken because police retained the slot machines and threatened to destroy them and confiscate the cash contents.

Hager contended, Judge Mish said, that the police have no right to destroy the machines or appropriate the contents, and that upon payment of his fine he is entitled to their return because the only penalty that can be imposed is that prescribed by valid city ordinance.

There is no dispute about the fact that the legislature gave the mayor and council the right to "restrain and prohibit gaming," according to Judge Mish, but he added that the city ordinance contains no provision for the destruction of machines or confiscation of their contents. The only penalty is fine or jail sentence.

It is conceded that the only authority under which police can retain devices is under an order passed by the mayor and council on April 23, 1934, Judge Mish said, pointing out that that order was passed in accordance with a recommendation of the grand jury.

The order provides, the jurist said, that all gaming devices confiscated by the police department in the enforcement of the law shall be immediately destroyed under the direction of the chief of police so that they cannot be used again, provided the devices are not needed for evidence in any prosecution against the owners or operators.

Judge Mish declared the "purpose of this order, no doubt, was to prevent individual members of the police force from reselling gambling devices seized in raids and unjustly appropriating these devices by appropriating them to their own use for the contents of the machines."

Not an Ordinance
"This order, however, desirable may be its purpose, does not purport to be an ordinance of the city and does not have the legal effect of an ordinance."

The case was submitted to Judge Mish by Estel C. Kelley, counsel for the lodge, and City Attorney Charles Z. Heston on memoranda. Judge Mish heard the appeal because both of the local circuit court judges are members of the aerie and disqualified from acting in the case.

Police said two five-cent machines, two ten-cent machines, a twenty-cent machine and a fifty-cent machine were taken in the raid.

Louis Donius, Held For Vagrancy, Gets Suspended Term

Louis Donius, 55, South Cumberland, received a suspended sentence of one year in the house of correction following his conviction in circuit court yesterday on a vagrancy charge by Chief Judge William A. Huxter and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper.

He was warned that any future violations will result in an automatic prison term. Donius played a jury trial when arrested by police several months ago.

Eather Alger, 45, formerly of Wheeling, W. Va., also charged with vagrancy, was convicted when her appeal case was heard by the judges. She had been sentenced to serve six months in the house of correction by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., and the sentence was affirmed by the judges. Sentence was suspended on her promise to return to Wheeling and stay out of this county.

Following a private trial in the office of Chief Judge Huxter, Charles Fisher, this city, was found guilty of paternity, and was ordered to pay $218 medical expenses incurred by the prosecuting witness, Evelyn Nielsen, said to be 18 years old.

Members of the petit jury were excused until Tuesday morning when civil cases are scheduled for trial. All criminal cases and criminal appeals have been disposed of, and the judges will hold hearings on the applications for beer and liquor licenses.

Navy Commander To Discuss Plan For Local Reserve

District Director Coming Here Next Week To Seek Suitable Building

Commander Richard D. White, of Norfolk, Va., director of the Naval Reserve of the Fifth Naval District, is expected here Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, to make preliminary plans for the establishment of a naval reserve unit in Cumberland.

According to Chief Boatwains' Mate Bradford Smith, local navy recruiter, Cumberland is one of eleven cities in the Fifth Naval District selected for a reserve unit, and the only city chosen in Maryland, except Baltimore. The local unit will consist of 200 men and thirteen officers, with a reserve formed later, Chief Smith indicated.

Commander White will make several official visits here, conferring with city, county and other officials, and will also inspect buildings designated as suitable for a navy armory or drill and training headquarters.

Smith said yesterday one of the major problems will be finding a suitable building with sufficient space for drills and also space for offices, class rooms and other required facilities.

The purpose of the naval reserve unit is to have a large number of units in the form of a reserve of men, normally civilians, trained for various navy assignments and immediate duty with the fleet in the event of a national emergency, Chief Smith explained.

Tentative plans call for the force level of one unit here, thirteen in Baltimore, four in Richmond, three in Norfolk, and one each in Portsmouth, Newport News, Lynchburg, Roanoke, Wheeling, Huntington and Charleston.

Chief Smith is arranging for Commander White to meet with local navy reserve officers here at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Summer Workshop for Teachers Will Be Given at Frostburg

Teachers in crowded cities and elsewhere who would like to spend the next two weeks in June in surroundings that would be both informative and pleasant, are being invited to consider the "Summer Workshop for Experienced Teachers" scheduled by Frostburg State Teachers college in Frostburg—where the students will participate in a series of carefully selected lectures and also take advantage of the summer recreational opportunities in Frostburg and the nearby mountainous area.

With the war over, Miss Lillian C. Compton, president, has taken great pains to plan an unusually attractive program. Subjects to be covered can be divided roughly into five categories including conservation, remedial reading, nutrition, art, and workshop problems.

Capable Staff Secured
The president is also pleased to announce that an unusually capable staff has been secured to head up the respective departments with the remedial reading section to be headed by Dr. Emmett A. Betts, director of the Reading Clinic, at Temple University, Philadelphia, who is regarded as one of the outstanding men in his field. Dr. Betts will be assisted by Miss Carolyn Welch, who acts as his assistant at Temple University, and spends two days a week in Baltimore as director of the reading clinic.

There will be lectures and discussions of problems relating to reading readiness, direct instruction, word recognition, vocabulary building and the analysis and correction of common difficulties.

Kiwanis Service Stressed in Talk By C. B. Hellman

Capital District Governor Makes Official Visit to Cumberland Club

Kiwanis today is in the strongest position in the history of our organization, numerically, financially, and from the standpoint of service which is being given by our clubs, Claude B. Hellman, Baltimore, governor of the Capital Kiwanis District, asserted in an address before the Cumberland club at Central YMCA Thursday night.

Members of the club, who were present, were told that the club was the only one in the district which had made his official visit to the club.

Hellman said Kiwanis has grown each year, under the most difficult economic times in the history of our nation, until today, we have the largest membership in the history of the organization, over 157,000 carefully selected men, the leaders of their business and profession in the principal communities of the North American continent.

Manpower Is Important
Manpower is the motive power of Kiwanis, the district governor asserted, adding that is the reason Kiwanis places so much importance on maintaining full membership strength in our club. Selecting quality men of the community to replace men who have for one reason or another been deleted from our membership in order to keep up the high standard of Kiwanis.

Hellman, who is also chairman of the International Committee on Classification and Membership, reported that International is certain to reach its goal of 15,000 new members for 1946. Kiwanis is indeed on the march, he added. He said he knew of no greater satisfaction than that which comes from sharing with another some of the pleasures and satisfactions which we have found in Kiwanis.

The district governor spoke of the International Kiwanis Convention at Atlantic City, June 9 to 13 and urged as many members of the local club as possible to attend, adding there will be interesting and informative programs, based upon Kiwanis objectives, carefully prepared which will be worth going a long way to see and hear.

Kiwanis Service to the underprivileged child and to the youth of our nation is a beacon that has attracted busy men in all walks of life to join hands in performing a service, the record of which in the last thirty-one years we can justly feel proud, Hellman stated.

The work of the local club in underprivileged children, as well as in other community activities, was highly praised by the governor.

Build for Peace
Hellman said the theme adopted by Kiwanis International this year is "Build for Peace, Unity, Opportunity," and he urged the local club to do its part along those lines, adding that it is a challenging theme, that stresses the three great needs of this troubled world.

The district governor asserted there should be opportunity for our children to have their rightful heritage of a free nation, embodying all those principles for which our forefathers, our brothers and our sons fought. We want this country to be free from all un-Americanisms, and see that there is full opportunity for the returning veteran to a rightful place in the professional and business life of our communities.

We need a return of the era when the small man can succeed in (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)
